PUBLISHED ANNUALLY

OPENING: Let's Talk About Us

Who has the most spirit? SMHS and Matt Skinner, Pgs. 4 & 5. Bearcats travel to the far corners of the globe and some places between during their summer, Pgs. 6 & 7. The fastest fifty minutes of the day, lunch, are also the best. Students congregat gossip, and just plain have fun, Pgs. 8 & 9. Teenager's clothing ranges from the bizarre to ultraconservative. In a world where style change by the week, SMHS follows it's own beat, Pgs 10 & 11. San Mateo students are on the job. Due to rising costs, Bearcats are making their way in the business world, pgs. 12 & 13.

STUDENT LIFE: It's All For The Fun Of It

Band, Drama, and the school newspaper are all important facets of our school curriculum, Pgs. 26, 34, 32 respectively. These activities give students chance to represent our school and have fun at the same time. But student life is more than this. it includes activities which make school more bearable, such as the Grid, pgs. 22 & 23, and Spirit Week, Pgs. 18 & 19, when the whole school parties for the Little-Big Game, Pgs. 20 & 21. Students lives are influenced by the current events in our world Pgs. 48 & 49. Activities make SMHS come alive.

CLUBS: Something For Everyone

You're bored with lunch, so what is there to do besides feed your face? Join a club. You can spend your time playing a heated game of chess in Mr. Juri's room or contemplating the meaning of life in the Philosophy Club. Learn how to speak simple Japanese in 10 minutes with the Asian Club or build atom bombs with Uncle Bob in the Science Club. No matter what you're into there's something for you.

ACADEMICS: SMHS Students Are Hitting The Books

Besides being the most spirited students in the county, if not the country, SM Bearcats are also the smartest. Our SAT scores are above the national average, and 85% of our Seniors go on to college. SMHS offers more than just strong programs in Math and English - there are classes in which you learn and have fun too. In Child Growth, Auto Shop, and Computers In Business you get hands-on experience and learn valuable skills.

SENIORS: The Class Of 1986 is #1!!

How do Seniors really spend their time? They spend hours slaving over applications and harrassing the lady in the Career Center, but what do they really do? Most Seniors suffer from a peculiar disease that strikes around the middle of September - Senioritis. When they're not sleeping, they're writing Othello essays, preparing oral reports or working on their bean plant projects. The governing thoughts that rule their minds are the facts that it's almost over and that the Class of 1986 Rules!

UNDERCLASSMEN: On Their Way To The Top 130

They're everywhere. They're behind the wheels of the Drivers Ed. cars and they're on the front lawn. During their first years here at Ol' SM they are initiated by William Shakespeare. They experience Spirit Week, football games and lunch on the front lawn. They're the new generation. They're a group of very spirited students who are waiting patiently for their chance to be on top.

FACULTY: The Cream Of The Crop 170

They're the people who stand up in front of the class every day, day in and day out. It's not an easy thing to do. They have to look at 30 sleepy faces every morning for 9 months. It's nothing short of miraculous to be able to recite lines from Hamlet at 8 o'clock in the morning. We tend to take them for granted, but deep down we know that they're the best and they deserve our thanks.

SPORTS: The Thrill OF Victory 184

What makes a winning team? It's more than the score, it's that winning spirit. The varsity football team rolled over their opponents, one after the other. The Water Polo teams splashed their way into the hearts of their fellow Bearcats. The Volleyball team made us all proud with their winning ways. The Tennis team beat Burlingame for the first time in 8 years. The Cross Country team, those crazy individuals that love pain, appeared to work hard this season, running all the way to Hilltop. All the teams, no matter what sport, never fail to make us proud.

This is the Editor's Note which tradition requires that I write. But I don't want to talk about how hard it is to make the book or that this is the 80th Anniversary Edition. Let's talk about us. This is the theme for our 1986 Elm. "What kind of a theme is that?" you ask. True, it is a rather unique theme, but this is a unique school. And that's really what this yearbook is about, us. So why not brag? We have a lot to be proud of. And I'm not merely talking about our awesome football team. Our school has, (and I know you've heard this before), an outstanding record of academic excellence. And why do we put up with it? Because deep down most of us like this place. If you didn't you wouldn't have bought this. Sure, we complain about S.M., but if we hear someone from Hillsjail putting our school down, watch out! So go ahead, talk about us.

BIG, BAD & BOSS

This year there's no need to ask who's number one

A group of spirited fans obviously knows who's on top. David Somers shows his pride at the Aragon game.

Jennifer McCorimick looks on under a veil of spirited silly string. Obviously happy with the outcome of the game are Catherine Waslif, Michele Lerner and Missy Miller.

What game could be complete without the sounds of the SM band?!

Julia Cerutti takes a breather to root on the team. Matt Skinner sports his new Pierre Cardin tie.

San Mateo High School is proud of its excellent academic reputation - providing quality education . . . That's one side of San Mateo, the other side is shown here - because after a tough week of memorizing equations, writing essays, and reading stories in French, everyone needs a way to let go and be crazy for awhile. Football games give the students of SMHS the perfect opportunity to let off steam and show the world how proud they are to be Bearcats. Orange and black bodies fill the stands. The familiar sound of "We are S.M." fills the air. Hundreds of teen-agers are getting high on life. The entire Bearcat Block is on it's collective feet. The band plays Taps - the game is over, but the high spirits carry over into the weekend.

HOT!

It was the Summer of '85

Summer - three very short, fun-filled months. Summer is something different for everyone. For some it means the beach and tan bodies. For others it is time to travel to foreign countries. But for most it is a time to either sleep until noon - or go to bed at noon. Longer days and shorter nights provide the perfect settings for celebrating the long awaited freedom from tests, essays and oral presentations. Hot summer nights are spent in hot tubs, swimming pools or dancing at a club. The Seniors-to-be go south to visit UCLA or USC. Summer is a time to make new friends, and forge lasting bonds that stretch across the miles. Most importantly, it gives your brain time to repair itself after the beating it took the previous school year. Before you know it, Summer is over. It's hard to admit, but you realize it is time to go back to school and wait for next summer.

L-U-N-C-H

Your biological clock is ticking. No, not that one, the one located within your stomach. You know, the one making those embarrassing gurgling noises while your teacher is lecturing. Nervously, you wet your lips and press a discreet hand on your tummy. You glance at the clock. Five, four, three, two, one, one ... when is that bell ringing?!

Twelve o'clock, that magical time designating forty minutes of relief. IT'S THE TIME TO GRAB YOUR BOOKS, RACE TO YOUR LOCKER, THROW YOUR BOOKS IN, AND JUST ESCAPE. Your options include: 1) hanging out at your locker, 2) copying over your chemistry homework (after finding someone who has done it), 3) showing off your parent's new car down the Del after raiding Togo's or Jack in the Box, 4) indulging in a challenging chess game in Mr. Juri's room, or the most popular option, 6) lounging languidly on the front lawn. Whatever you choose to do, lunch is definitely everybody's favorite curriculum.

Today's Stylish

Mood

What's the key to being in style? It's not wearing the most expensive clothes or looking like everyone else in school. Having style means feeling good about whatever you're wearing. Plaids and bold patterns have made a big comeback this year with a flair for finesse. The preppy style has a new lull with vests, sweaters and casual corduroy pants. You can see the "Bosqual look" in the emergence of flowery tapestry-type prints, genteel velvet-collared jackets, lacey blouses and silken ties. The look's best part is it's not overstated and has too many bold pieces competing for attention. This often repeated mistake could turn a great look into a gaudy one.

Unisex dressing was popular last year, but this year the emphasis is on the accessories, such as ties and masculine watches teamed with frilly laces. Accessories are playing a big role in fashion too. The Swatch look, "coins", choker bracelets, and earrings are just as important as the shirt you wear.

A saying says "Fashion is what you wear, but style is how you wear it". And it's true! You can wear all of the "in" fashion items and look just fine, but it's jazzing them up with the right accessories that will give you that sense of style you're looking for.

Not all students dress outrageously. The majority of students dress conservatively. Long Nguyen models the "GQ" look, otherwise known as tastefully conservative.

Penny loafers will always be around, but this year we have paisley flats and sandals for guys. Stephanie Saito is wearing the famous penny loafers. Next to her is Michele Lerner modeling our paisley flats. Allison Halpin is wearing the new wave look "the black boots". Sandals are very comfortable in the summer as well as during school. Wearing these from left to right are Pat Harrington and Craig Henderson.

The bob and surfer cuts (not pictured) is the #1 hair style at San Mateo. George Fua models the popular "no hair cut". The punk cut is worn by Kirsten Dilworth.

They killed a sheep for that? The designs on sweaters this year are wilder than ever. Modeling the pull over look are Greg Patner in the white crew-neck and Scott Dunseath in the v-neck. The golf sweaters look good on boys or girls, such as Nina Goldslager on the far left and Romuel Consunji. On the far right the sweater dress on Jaleh Nouri is very big this year. They are often decorated with paislies, flowers or plaids. Guess what time it is? Watches are playing an important role in fashion for teens. People are spending more and more money for these functional accessories with Guess watches selling for an average of $40.00 and Swatches going for around $35.00. Our model from left to right are Brooks Mendell, Scott Alexander, Danielle Wigglesworth and Erika Ranahan. These are the people who don't follow the trends. They create their style by breaking as many fashion rules as possible. From left to right are Melissa Lawrence, Shannon Reynolds, Suzan Schick and Michelle Goodwin. These varieties are what makes the fashion world go crazy.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

Bearcats Are On The Job

The Prom, your class ring, the yearbook and gas. What do these things have in common? They all take money, of course. How does a high school student get it? Either you're fortunate enough to have parents who have an endless supply - or you get a job. For $3.35 an hour you make pizza, sell clothes, or make greasy hamburgers and limp french fries. Work plus homework makes for a lot of late-night essay writing, but then that wonderful day, PAYDAY, rolls around and all of your problems are forgotten. At the end of that long bank line lies the answer to all your troubles - MONEY! Friday night means the movies with your friends. You're so generous with your newly found fortune that you treat everyone to popcorn. Saturday you finally buy that new sweater you've been dieing to get for the last month. Then on Sunday you look at your car and remember that you need to fill it up. You open up your wallet - Where did all the money go? You can't seem to recall spending so much. "Dad ..."

Just Look At Us
Now

Take a close look around SMHS. What do you see? Hundreds of different faces and an equal number of styles. What do the students all have in common? They share friends, fun times and a pride in their school that turns their blood orange and black.

What is a Bearcat anyway?! Everyone has their own individual way of "being" a Bearcat. Some people attend every single football game. Others make up the teams that make SM known throughout the Peninsula. Class leaders set examples for their peers by planning spirited activities in which all are able to participate. After a few short days at SM one begins to realize that being a Bearcat is not just a part-time job, it's a way of life.

Spirit Week has certainly tamed down over the years. Gone are the bon-fires and floats. But the rivalry of the Little Big Game is still an important part of the lives of the mighty Bearcats, and so is Spirit Week. The events during Spirit Week are definately becoming more bizarre. Only the bravest of students dare to participate in these dangerous games. Egg in the Cup is but one example of the guts it takes to... but let me explain. In order to play egg in the cup, one must simply drop an egg from about six feet high into a cup on the ground. Sounds easy, right? The catch is that the cup is positioned in the mouth of a luckless partner. If you miss, well, I'm sure you get the idea. The Marshmellow Pass is a little less violent. All one must do in this game is pass a rather wet and sticky marshmellow to your buddy. But this game also has a catch. The marshmellow must be passed on your nose.

Besides the games, there are other Spirit Week competitions, such as hall decorating. Each class gets a hall to fix up in the best S.M. tradition. One hardly knows if it is really Halloween we are celebrating or we just like orange and black. At any rate, Spirit Week is lots of fun and I for one, like it.

So remember, when students are seen acting crazy, smiling constantly, forming circles, and doing weird things on the grass, it is not finals, national cheerleading week, a full moon, the beginning of peace and love month, dental hygiene week, or a nuclear bomb attack, but San Mateo High School's annual Spirit Week.

NOV. 10-15

This little week was the big buildup for a Little-Big Game.

NO CONTEST

The Bearcats capture another big win in the Little-Big Game.

It was a dark and stormy day . . . . . Does this sound like the beginning to a tacky horror story? Well, in a way it is. This is the story of the 1985 Little-Big Game and for Burlingame fans, it was a horror story. It didn't start too well for S.M. either. The first quarter was dismal for the Bearcats. As a top ranked team, the crowd expected some fast action and dazzling touchdowns. But the ball continually seemed to slip from the Bearcats hands on the wet field. A slow drizzle dampened the spirits of an embarrassingly lifeless crowd. The Panthers, on the other hand, were ecstatic. Just imagine, them, the team with a mediocre at best record holding off the invincible Bearcats for a whole quarter!

But then the sun came out, and everything changed. The mood changed from "Ho-Hum" to "Let's Party!" in the blink of an eye. Tuipolotu made our first touchdown and the crowd went wild as orange and black balloons were released into the sky. By the end of the second quarter, the score was 15-0 and we were riding high.

The Little-Big Game is more than just another football game, it is an event. The cheerleaders look especially nice and the band members put extra polish on their shoes. At least I think they do. Anyway, they sounded great. During half-time, they were led by Drum Major David Sudderth. The show culminated in a trumpet solo by Mike Bloom. But the final touch occurred when a hired plane flew over the field with a banner reading "Go Bearcats!"

During the third quarter, the score reached 22-0 and it looked as if the Cats would have another shut out. And as the fourth quarter neared the end, with a score of 42-0, a shut-out seemed a certainty.

But with one minute and eleven seconds to go, the Panthers made a touchdown. The final score was 42-6.

Needless to say, the Bearcats were rather pleased.

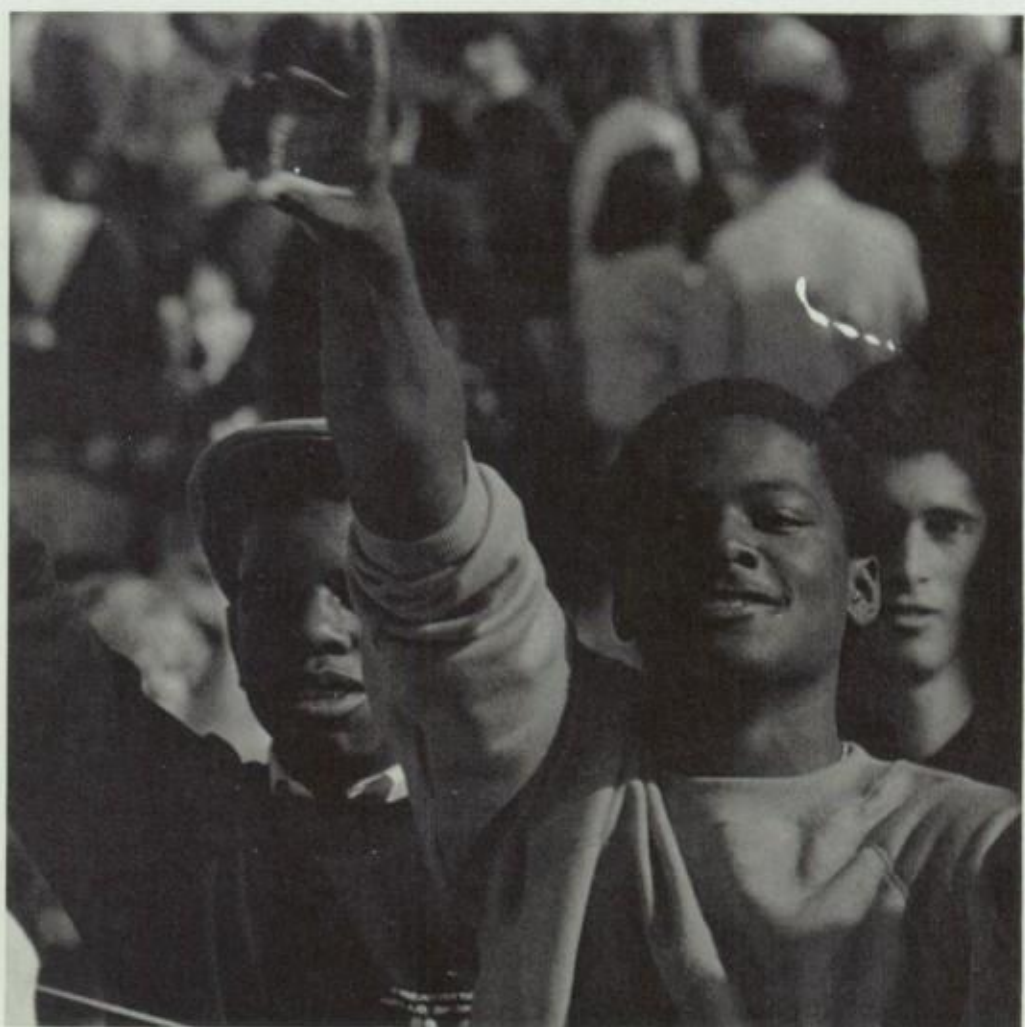

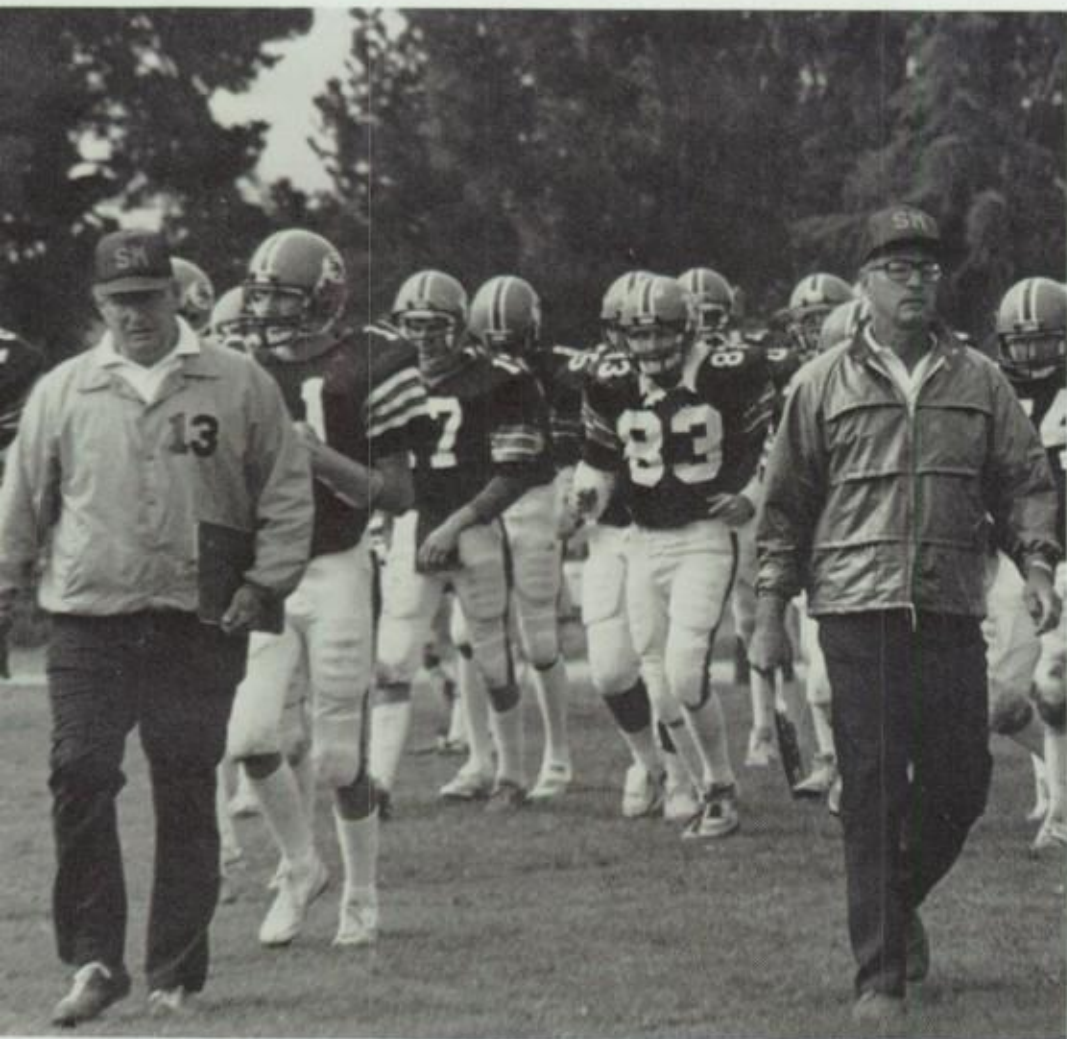

Kevin Pempraze and Jeff Bailey head the drum line in an impressive half-time performance.

#43, Bob Whitehill, breaks away from Burlingame defenders and heads downfield for one of his many yard-gaining runs.

An excited, standing room only crowd filled the bleachers.

Coaches Davis and Williams lead the undefeated Bearcats onto the field in search of another Little-Big game blow-out.

Drum Major David Sudderth shows off his legs before leading the Bearcat Band onto the field.

Joining his fellow classmates, Brad Johnson cheers on his winning team.

It's 7:01 PM, November 9, 1985. Where's your date? He was supposed to be here at seven. Your dress is perfect, but you can't sit down or you'll be one big wrinkle. 7:05: Your mother yells at you for pacing. 7:06: the doorbell rings. He's here and by 7:30 he's passed inspection and you're in his car and on the way to the restaurant. He forgot to open the door for you but you forgive him because he looks so cute in his suit. Dinner is great, you didn't spill anything on your white dress and managed to keep the conversation going at the same time. When you arrive at the South San Francisco Holiday Inn you are impressed with the sign in front welcoming San Mateo High. The room is decorated with white and blue balloons. But you hardly notice these as you rush to the bathroom to check your makeup. You smile for the photographer knowing that your hair is a mess and hoping that you can confiscate the pictures before your boyfriend shows his friends how goofy you looked. The music is great, the dancing is great, and your date is fantastic. The evening rushes past and before you know it, the evening you've been waiting for since October is over.

BEARCAT BAND :

THEIR SPIRIT MARCHES ON!!

'UGH! It's 5:30, time to get up for another hour of morning marching practice! Yuck! Well, maybe that is what you think, but not the 68 member S.M.H.S. marching band under the new direction of Mr. Griggs RoAne and auxiliary advisor Kim Use. Morning practice is part of the day in the life of a band student. Not only is there just morning practice, there's after school sectionals and sometimes evening rehearsals to make every note and movement clean and precise. You may ask 'why do they put up with all of that demanding and hard work. Well, as Chris Smith says, and junior flautist in the band, "you put what you put into it."

The band's dedication was proved at the band reviews they went to in the fall season. Under drum major David Sudderth, the band placed third at both of the reviews that they competed at. Bargaing! Another great achievement was that of the percussion section led by Jeff Bailey. The section received two first place trophies making them one of the top sections in Northern California! The Flag Corps, led by captain KJirsten Baerwaldt and co-captain Paula Kinsman, received two fourth place ratings - the best they have done in the past three years! Also, the I.D. Unit under captain Debbie Rief went to the competition line and came back with some good scores. All in all, the marching band had an awesome fall season.

So, you see, the band is a very rewarding experience. Not only do you learn the joy of music, you learn ways of living and dealing with people. As Debbie Hursts says, It's a good opportunity and place to be where people work together and long lasting friendships form."

Let's GO CHEERLEADERS

Cheerleaders are underrated. Not many people really understand how much work they put into a rather thankless job. First of all, they always have to wear their cheerleading outfits to school before a game. Second, they have to go to all of the games of else. Then there are all of the practices they attend. Cheerleading really takes a bite out of one's social calendar. But what really takes a bite out of one's social calendar. But what really should earn the respect of a cheerleader's school life is something which few of us have even heard of, Cheerleading Camp. At Cheerleading Camp everybody smiles for four days straight. At breakfast they smile, at lunch they smile, they even smile when they sleep! Because to be a good cheerleader, one must always look happy. Who cares if your team is behind by thirty points? Who cares if your star player broke his leg? the spirit must go on! Aching jaws are only a small part of the camp. Early every morning, some idiot runs outside and screeches, "Is everybody happy?"

And all the cheerleaders yell back, "yes!"

And then the smiling idiot screams, "I can't hear you!"

And all the cheerleaders shout, "YES!"

And then the idiot whose lips are probably wired into a perpetual smile screams, "ONE MORE TIME!"

And all the cheerleaders scream back, "YES!!!!"

All of this occurs every morning around six o'clock, at a time when all good cheerleaders should be getting their beauty rest.

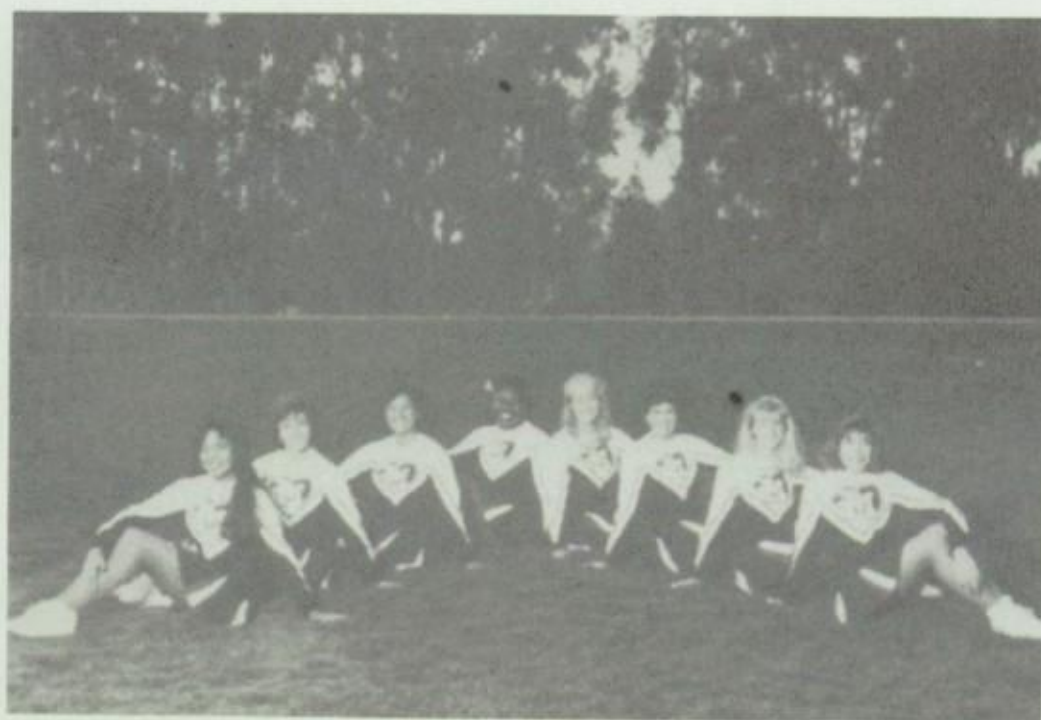

"Why do they do this?" you ask. One motivation is the Spirit Stick. This stick is awarded to the cheerleaders who show the most spirit while at camp. In order to get the stick they must get to classes on time, do their cheers before breakfast, help others, wear their school colors, and above all, SMILE, (some of our cheerleaders won the stick last August). At the end of the camp, the cheerleaders are rated on routines they learned while at camp. A superior rating is highly coveted but rarely achieved. Lack of sleep due to some heavy late night partying probably accounts for this.

Who is that masked bearcat? Student government officials often shed their executive duties to lead the school in a different way, in spirit!

The Elmers Stick To Their Jobs

"Genius is one percent inspiration and ninety-nine percent perspiration." In the case of the Elm Staff, it's more fifty-fifty. As you, the reader, thumb through this precious volume of memories with grubby and sticky fingers, think of all the meticulous, tedious work and torture the Elm Staff went through just for your viewing pleasure. If you don't want to think about it, at least continue reading this copy, (a yearbook term for an article for you non-yearbook people). Let's take a tour of the yearbook room and meet the amiable Elmers.

When the sixth period bell tolls, we find the two early birds in the yearbook room, which is perpetually littered with photos, copies, and bacteria colonies on leftover pizza. These two people are Kirsten Weiss, notorious hotshot editor, alias Mommy Dearest, and our beloved Dr. Outland, forever fussing with the roll book. Perky congregations of Elmers casually saunter in, dropping their backpacks on the already cluttered tables. Under the scrutinizing eye and whip of Ms. Weiss, the lethargic, nose-picking students transform into energetic, efficient, creative work-aholics. The Elmers locate photos from contact sheets (a yearbook term for sheets of photographs), order them in a professional manner, glue them on to double page spreads, and typeset, all madly done in a haphazard but competent manner. The photo orders are filled by our photographers: Kjirsten Baerwaldt, David Levitt, and Karl Flick. Of course, once in a while, a wrench is thrown into the well oiled machinery. Specifically, I am referring to the incident when Aaron Pollack, alias Lurch, ruined a majority of photos with a flick of the lightswitch. Surprisingly, Aaron survived the staff's onslaught of verbal abuse and eye-popping glares.

Let's meet some other Elmers, divided into three main groups. The first group incorporates the real work-aholics, the ulcer oriented workers. They include Francis Wilson, or Franny, who has turned cross-eyed from overglaring at kick-backers, Leah Zippert, AKA Zippy, who has permanently stunted the growth of Judy Chang, AKA Baby Guido, due to her screams and ravings, shy Amy Shelton, who just can't say no (to yearbook assignments), studious Jennifer Novak, AKA Nova, practical Gladys Liston, alias Always There, Tina Eshaghpour, AKA Deadline Paranoia, Cheryl Ong, and last but not least, her cohort, Karalee Dong, AKA Wanna Lift? Then there is the second group whose lives are not dedicated to meeting yearbook deadlines, but are still nonetheless adequate workers whose contributions are admirable and appreciated. These people include: Ross campbell (or Roshneesh), who may appear an ordinary, quiet individual, but is in reality, quite gossipy and amusing, Mike Bloom, AKA Milo, who tries really hard to look busy, but is actually doing his American History assignments, and Judy Chang, who is not the intellectual she appears to be, and is really quite wild.

And then there are the Keith Soo Hoo's, who are in their own class, because they never are in class. Let's check out Collette Sandstedt, alias Mama Celeste, who is even at this moment working on her copy, in between her lengthy trips to Safeway with Victoria Schwerin, alias Victoria Schwerin. Then there's Keith Soo Hoo, the epitome of the kickbackers and Mark Otani. The two are still working on their cheer-leading pages. I wonder why....hmmm...

And, we musn't forget our newest additions to the family, HeeNguyen and Michelle Garrido, of whom I have not yet discovered their dark secrets.

Kjirsten Baerwaldt peaks out from behind the darkroom curtain in an attempt not to let "the dark out".

Hot Off The Press San Mateo Hi

An interesting event occurs every three weeks or so. As you rush out of your fourth period class after eagerly awaiting lunch, you notice boxes marked "San Mateo Hi." Have you ever wondered where they came from? Are they picked from trees after fairies sprinkle magical dust on them? Every article of every issue of the San Mateo Hi is the result of hard work of the "Hi" staff. Now here's your chance to meet the student journalists behind the articles. Despite the problematic typesetting machine, the staff manages to squeek by their deadline and deliver to the student body news, feature, sports, and thought-provoking editorials. Headed by co-editors John Burman and Chris Knowlton, the staff continues to bring new columns and old favorites which include: Burman's Sermon, Lori's Line, Bear With Me, Hi-Lights, and Hot Spot. With the help of advisor Mr. Quinlan, the talent of cartoonist Kevin Hakman, and contributions from the first year journalism class, every issue of the San Mateo Hi shows new improvements. The San Mateo Hi was chosen as the best high school newspaper in San Mateo County last year and it continually lives up to being the best; future awards would not be unexpected.

Dolly Won't Ever Go Away Again

Hello Dolly! Dolly was welcomed back to San Mateo in rousing musical starring Kate Holder as Dolly and directed by Mr. Roy Casstevens. The play was well received. On the opening night, the players were rewarded with a standing ovation. However, on their third performance, a fire-alarm sounded off just as Marci Spiegleman entered the stage with her colorful rendition of "Sweet Rosie O'Grady". Somehow, the actors managed to continue their lines, and the whole mess turned out to be a false alarm. Although this prank was upsetting to the cast at the time, it will no doubt be remembered fondly.

Co-Starring in the play was David Holmes, as Horace Vandergelder, who ranted and raved his way into the hearts of the audience. Paige Lesniak played Mrs. Molloy, and Mandy Silber played Minnie Fay. Cornelius Hackl and Barnaby Tucker were played by, respectively, Darren Cook, and Rocky Duval. Lovers ERmagarde and Ambrose Kemper were played by Cindy Berenstein and Paul Guyer.

Sets imported from Broadway accented the color of this classic musical. Choreography, musical, and vocal directors were respectively Berle Davis, Greg VanSudmeirer, and Connie Myratakis.

They Work Hard For Their Money Student Government

The 1986 Senior class council got to work right away by designing sweatshirts, t-shirts, and ties sporting the school colors. The sale of these fashionable items was swift and very profitable. After the sales the Prom had to be organized as well as the prospective boat dance. Although rarely the "early bird" the Senior class council got the job done when it was necessary. Once again, Dr. Kevin Welch did a superb job as an advisor. The senior class finished the year by donating a large sum to the Alexa Goldman scholarship fund.

The main goal of the Junior class council was to raise money (no big surprise) for the 1987 Jr./Sr. Prom. By earning close to 1,000 dollars through selling concessions at football games and Hello Dolly and hawking San Mateo Bearcat Mugs, Holiday Grams, as well as sponsoring the March 21 dance, the Junior class council reached their goal.

The sophomore class enjoyed a very successful year. First semester went well with Jean Elle as President Alex Stillman as Vice-President, John Crandall as Sec/Tres., Alana Klein as Activities Commissioner Kelly Crocker for publicity, and Andrea Novinski as delegate. Unfortunately, Jean moved away, so the council had to reassemble. Under the guidance of Mike Bower, they pulled through. Various fundraisers were dances, and the ever popular Valentines Grams.

CHECK OUT THE HALLOWED HALLS ON HALLOWEEN

San Mateo High School has very distinctive colors. Unfortunately, this can be rather confusing at Halloween. Let's face it folks, Halloween isn't much different from Spirit Week. We see orange and black all the time around here; but there is one major difference between Halloween and spirit days and that's the masks and costumes we wear. On October thirty-first we can become whatever we want or we can just plain goof off. So let's take a look at the day in the life of a mask.

"Before I tell you all about the day I spent at San Mateo High let me introduce myself. I'm just a plain Halloween mask. Well actually I'm supposed to look pretty scary but I think I look great. Anyway, I've been lying around in a box for months, just waiting for my favorite day of the year.

On the morning of October 31 "John", the guy who bought me dressed up and put me on his head. We were on our way to school. I was so excited about seeing my old friends on the students heads. They were all there, everyone who I spent time with at the Halloween shop. Most of the students were dressed up, a group of girls dressed like Madonna, another group dressed up as babies, there were a couple of smurfs, and even two guys who dressed up as my favorite hero: Pee Wee Herman. There were also a lot of people wearing weird looking clothes and walking around with lots of pens and pencils in their shirt pockets, (Nerds?)

I was especially nervous during fourth period. You see, there was going to be a contest during lunch and I was determined to win. When it was finally lunchtime, everyone went to the front lawn, where all the lunchtime activities were being held. The activities began with the lip sync contest. The first group of guys were dressed up as the Beach Boys; they were pretty good. Next there were three guys who lip synced The Time's "The Bird." They were GREAT; the crowd really liked them. There was also another group of guys who dressed up as soldiers and they lip synced "The Heat Is ON." The crowd was then asked to choose the winners. It was unanimous, "The Time" won.

Now came the moment I've been waiting for. Everyone who was dressed up went to the front, where they were judged. I HAD to win because I have been waiting for this day for months. The final decisions were made and guess what? The judges totally forgot about Me! They picked the winners for the scariest mask, the best group (three students dressed as dogs), and the most unusual outfit (someone dressed up as a beer); and the winners each got a prize, candy of course. I was a little disappointed that I didn't win but I'll be back next year!

VALENTINE'S DANCE

*... an enchanted evening
across the crowded halls*

February 14th-- cupid strikes again! Girls walk around with Valentine cards, candy, heart-shaped balloons, and freaky smooches, and guys have dreamy-eyed looks all day long. Everywhere you look, you'll see RED. So, what more can these love-sick teenagers take? Of course, a Valentine's Dance in the hallways! This year, the Student government's special touch to add a little spice to the "Valentine's Dance"; and so, they had everyone bouncing in the hallways and off the walls (in this case, off the lockers!).

If you stood by the door, you'd probably notice two kinds of people. Those couples who can't take their eyes off each other, and those with radar-like eyes scanning the halls for a prospective "special someone." No matter which group you fall into, don't look down on a dance such as this. It may be the best time to catch your boyfriend or girlfriend in a romantic mood. If you don't have a "friend," well, you never know what might happen. On this enchanted evening, just look across the crowded halls and you may find a stranger, then POOF!

TRIUMPH and TRAGEDY

Shuttle Disaster

Flags all around the country were lowered to half-mast when the space shuttle Challenger burst into flames on January 28, 1986 at 11:39 AM, killing its seven passengers. The mission, launched from Cape Canaveral, contained the first civilian astronaut, teacher Christa McAuliffe, who was selected from over 11,000 other teachers she was planning to send lessons from space back to her class at Concord High School in New Hampshire.

The space shuttle was at a height of one mile when the mission abruptly ended after only 73 seconds of flight. The crew included Ellison S. Onizuka, Christa McAuliffe, Francis R. Scobee, Judith A. Resnik, Ronald E. McNair, Michael J. Smith, and Gregory B. Jarvis. This is the second U.S. space tragedy, the first being an Apollo flight that exploded on the launch pad in 1967, killing three.

All future shuttle missions will be postponed at least six months until the malfunction has been found. Early speculation suggests that a fuel leak may have originated from the O-Rings in the solid rocket boosters, possibly due to freezing temperatures from the night before. This leak ignited the half million gallons of fuel used to propel the shuttle. Authorities say that even if the crew could have been warned, they would have been helpless.

With shuttle launches becoming commonplace after 24 safe launches and recoveries, Americans had come to expect perfection from the space program. Initially, there was fear that all confidence would be lost in the space program, resulting in a budget cut in not only the shuttle program, but also in the so-called "Star Wars" program. But President Reagan stood behind the space program.

Geneva

From November 19-20, President Reagan and Soviet Leader Mikhail Gorbachev met in Geneva to discuss, among other things, arms control. As the first U.S.-Soviet summit in six years, our two countries had a lot to catch up on. Foremost, the Soviets were bargaining for an end to President Reagan's proposed Strategic Defense Initiative-Star Wars. While the U.S. Administration angled for reductions of the Soviets' heavy missiles with superwarheads and more human rights. Unfortunately, no concrete bargains were reached. But the Geneva talks were a significant step towards defrosting the cold war with our Soviet competitors.

A Nation's Sorrow

From the disastrous winter floods in the Delta of California, to the Mexican Earthquake, news of natural calamities have touched the lives of students everywhere during the 1986 school year. As many as 20,000 people were killed in the earthquake which rocked Mexico. And in Colombia, up to 25,000 were killed as Nevado del Ruiz erupted, causing mudslides and floods. But natural disasters were only part of the tragedies which effected our lives. In Dallas, 134 people were killed in a Delta jet crash. And a plane filled with American servicemen plunged from the sky, killing all aboard. In Japan the crash of JAL-123 killed a record 520 people. These airline disasters have caused us to reappraise the safety of the skyways in more than one way. The hijacking of TWA flight 847, with its 39 U.S. hostages froze our nation for 17 days. Later, the cruise liner Achille Lauro was hijacked. This time though, the hijackers were captured as the plane carrying them to safety was forced down by the U.S. Air Force.

Live Aid

A triumph for music, Live-Aid, the brainchild of Bob Geldof raised cash for African's famine victims. Millions of dollars were raised at the concerts in London and Philadelphia that were broadcast to over one billion TV viewers, and featured such notables as Tina Turner, Mick Jagger, Phil Collins, David Bowie, Elvis Costello, Patti LaBelle, Bob Dylan, Elton John, Robert Plant, Jimmy Page, and Roger Daltrey. Live-Aids founder stated, "If we don't do something, then we are participants in a vast Human crime."

Censorship

The record rating controversy is not a new one. In 16th century England our forefathers complained about the bawdy ballads sung in pubs. But this controversy has reached new heights in 20th century America, where many complain over the "pornographic" lyrics to certain songs. What the Parents Music Resource Center is demanding is a rating system for records. Opposing them, are those who feel that a rating system is tantamount to censorship and a violation of our constitutional rights and is basically un-American. Much rock music is undoubtedly offensive. The real issue here is does anyone have a right to do anything about it.

Marcos Vs. Aquino

On February 7, 1986 the U.S. Government held its breath while waiting for the Philippine election returns. Philippine leader Ferdinand Marcos was the expected winner, Corazon Aquino the underdog. The U.S. tried to avoid public favoritism by saying it would work with whoever was the victor. The hope was that an Aquino victory would secure U.S. bases in the Philippines and bring about economic reforms in that country and quiet the popular unrest. First the expected happened-Marcos won, then the unexpected occurred-Aquino overthrew the ailing Marcos, marking a new era for the Philippine Government. Marcos fled the country and was given asylum in the U.S. Aquino set about creating a new constitution and releasing hundreds of Marcos' political prisoners.

Sports

A sports figure who is especially known to San Mateo students is Debbi Thomas. As a San Mateo alumna herself, she has skated her way into the hearts of those who knew her and those of us who only knew of her. As the first black female to place first in the National Womens Figure Skating Championship in 1986. On the darker side of sports is the drug scandal which has rocked baseball to its foundation. According to New York Mets player Keith Hernandez, about 40 percent of players were using cocaine a few years ago. But drugs isn't the only problem facing our national pastime. The game has become increasingly financially unstable and there is a bitterness among different baseball factions. So far, football has escaped this controversy. Not only did the Chicago Bears win the Super Bowl this year, after trouncing the New England Patriots, but they have been blessed with a wealth of good publicity from their lineman, known as The Refrigerator. Their quarterback, McMahon also received publicity, but not in such a favorable light. During one of the games, he wore a headband with the Adidas logo on it and was fined by Football Commissioner Rozelle. At the next game, McMahon wore another headband. This time the logo read "Rozelle".

Dear Charis:

Argh! It's 5:30 AM. Why am I awake and staring into the darkness? Oh yeah, this is not home and I don't have to go to school. It's Spring Break and I'm in the Mojave Desert enjoying the sun. Ouch! I forgot about my sunburn. I guess that's to be expected when you hike up and down granite boulders without any sunscreen on. Since I'm up, I guess I'll start the day with a quick shower. Where are my shoes? Nevermind, I see them under that pile of dirty clothes. On the count of three I will get out of my sleeping bag.

It's perfect out here, no cars and no smog. There's just the soft pink light filling the horizon and the sound of birds. I think I'll watch the sunrise. The horizon is shot with streaks of gold and the mountains are a yellow hue. I can see animals running around. Wow! There goes a young fox! We, as a class, haven't seen much in the way of medium sized animals. Now the whole landscape is awash with golden color. Only the ever present creosote bushes are greenish. This is going to be a great day. This time, I won't forget the sunscreen. My notebook, plant press, and jaeger are all eagerly awaiting me at my sleeping bag. I'll have to remember to get them before I get on the bus.

Where is the bus taking me you ask? Well first, our poor suffering bus driver drops us off for a quick five mile hike. This hike is made more trecherous due to us having to race to keep up with our teacher, Mr. Holm, whilst our heads our buried in our notebooks. We'll look at landscape, jot down the common names of plants, and about four mountain ridges later, lunch will arrive. After lunch, we'll take the bus to our next destination, and hike up a mountain to see the Salton Sea. Then it's time to start heading back to the good old gym where we will be spending the night.

I hope the picture of that sunset turns out O.K. Remind me to show it to you. We don't have sky like that back at good old San Mateo High!

Last night, after our hike, the students had pretty much fallen asleep on the bus. We were that tired! I just draped my legs over the seat in front of me and dozed off. The girl in front of me didn't care. She was asleep too!

I'd rather not think about dinner. Amy and I will probably just order pizza.

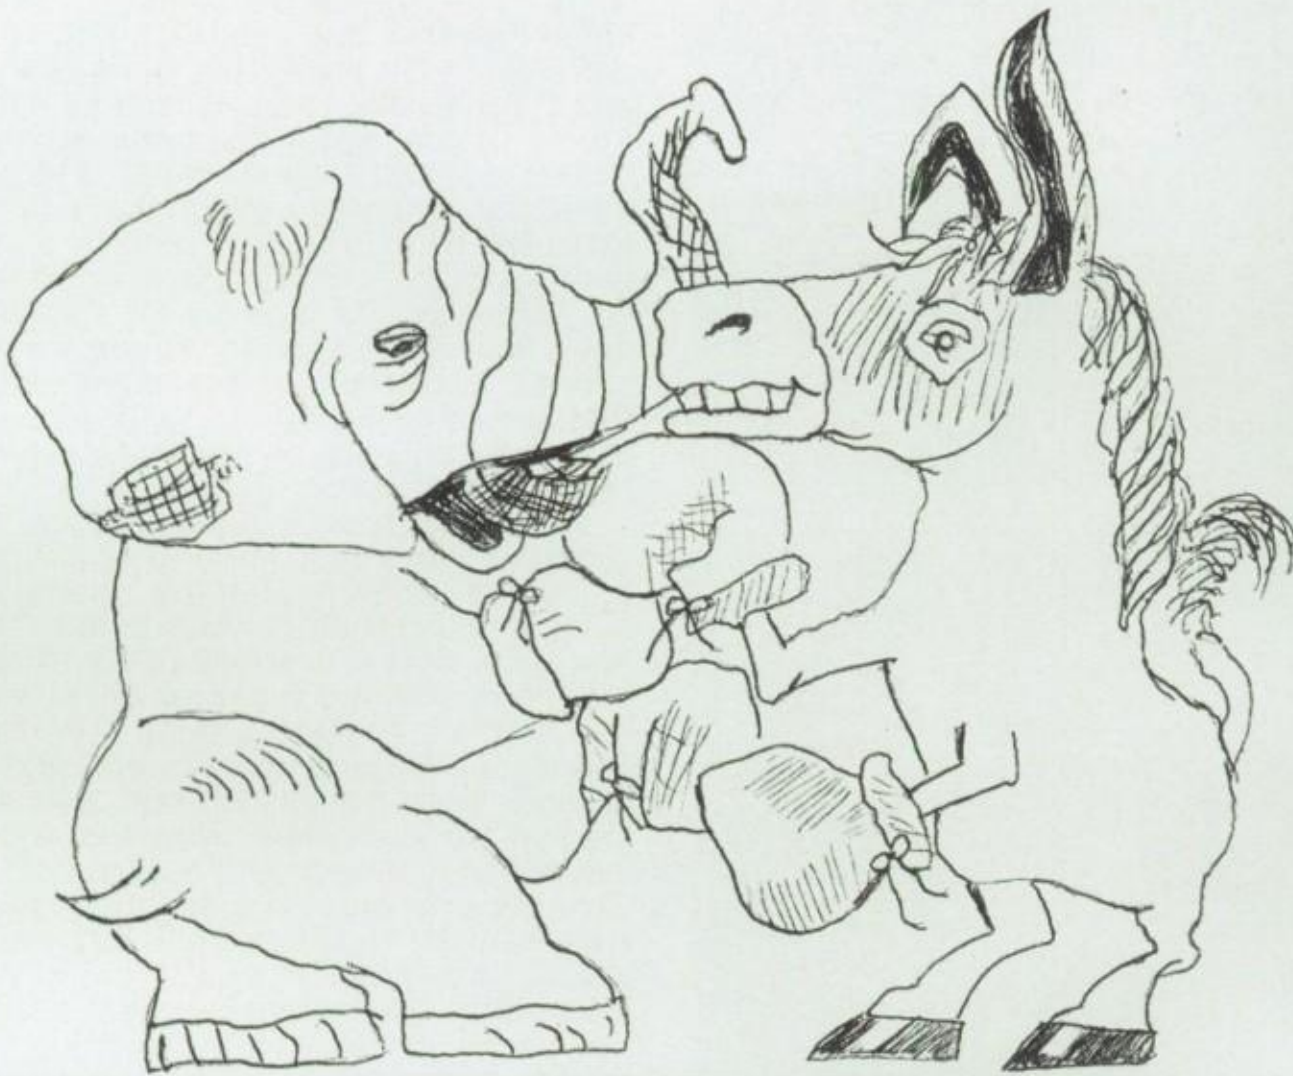

By the time evening class rolls around, my sunburn probably won't hurt so much. What's more likely is that I'll just be too numb from hiking to feel anything. During class I'll have to find the scientific names of plants like the Desert Almond (or is it Dessert Almond? Why didn't I bring a dictionary?). I guess I'll just ask the person sitting next to me like I did last night.

And that's what it's like in the day of the life of a Desert Rat of the Mojave Desert. Unfortunately, we only have three more days to go.

Love,
Leah

Close-up GOVERNMENT IN ACTION

Senior Matt Skinner: "I had always heard people talking about Close-up and they sounded gung-ho but I never thought that it would be as fun, exciting, and informative as it was. I know that sound like a commercial for Close-up, but now I wish that I had gone earlier. It was an incredible experience, not just a week off from school." Teacher/advisor Ron Berridge: "If you like politics, if you like excitement, and if you like rubbing shoulders with POWER, than you'll love Close-up in D.C.!" Sophomores Kathy Fulton and Nancye Michaelian: "Close-up was cool." Senior Leah Zippert: "I have always been interested in politics, but I felt that I was missing something just learning out of a textbook. Close-up came along and I jumped at the chance to do something. I really love to argue. The speakers and the students from other parts of the country gave me some different viewpoints about U.S. Government. And to the people from Louisiana and Arkansas, "Thanks Y'all!"

Kathy Fulton and Nancye Michaelian are shown here standing in the Library of Congress.

THE ELM

80 Years In The Making

"Glancing at the past, pictured in this Elm, you will be amused at the ideas and clothes and the fashions, just as forty years from now the San Mateo students of the class of 1986 will be amused at ours..." This quote is from the 1946-fortieth anniversary edition of the Elm. Well, they were right, they do look strange. And in 2026 we will probably look strange too.

1907- The graduates numbered ten. Instead of car keys, students asked to take the horse and buggy.
 1911- We move to the site of the present J.C., from a house in the ballpark.
 1913- Fords began to appear on the streets, frightening horses and little old ladies. The two step was fast replacing the polka. Girls skirts still nearly touched the floor. Boy's collars were high, round, and stiff.
 1915- The Hi was born.
 1922- Burlingame Hi completed. Sorrowfully the student body separates.
 1927- Alma Mater moves to its present location. A bonfire 35 feet high is built for the Big Little Game. Girls cut their hair to boyish bobs.
 1930- The flapper era sets in. Girls sport madly swooping hemlines. Some boys wear knickers.

1935- The school tower is taken down as we are earthquake proofed.
 1937- Virginia Gilmore graduates. Did you see this Hollywood starlet in "Wonder Man?" Edith Pemberton of the girls swim team breaks world records.
 1940- Micky Mouse and Mac West poll the most votes in student body elections, (declared void).
 1941- War! A service flag is ordered.
 1945- Peace, with 1100 stars in our service flag. The atomic age begins.
 1950- S.M.'s track team wins the P.A.L.- beating Burlingame and Lincoln.
 1958- Sputniks and space travel dominate the news
 1968- Wrestlers win MPL title with a perfect season
 1969- Neil Armstrong is the first man on the moon

1974- Frosh-soph football team was best in the league with a 6-0 record.
 1976- Flip Wilson made a surprise guest appearance during an assembly.
 1986- S.M. alumni Debbie Thomas places first in the U.S. National Figure Skating competition. She is the first black woman to have this honor.

Faire Play

The Club Faire Entices New Members

There you are sitting at your desk faced with the problem of filling in the void under the extra curricular activity section. The solution to your problem is to join CLUBS! The average student at San Mateo High belongs to 2.4 clubs. But just what are these clubs? One is the club that students are really interested in, the other club is joined in order to kiss up to the advising teacher and maybe get that A, and the .4 is the one club whose first meeting is attended in order to put it down on their college application. But how does one decide which club to join? A good way to find out which club interests you, and which club that certain teacher advises is to attend the CLUB FAIRE!

Situated on the front lawn, the Club Faire is the place for clubs to show students what really goes on during their meetings, and to hopefully attract new members. Walking by the many display tables, one can see chess matches being played, chemistry explosions by the Science Club, and free wine and cheese served compliments of the French Club; all to entice new members. The Club Faire doesn't compel anyone to join anything, but it could be the one event that could actually spice up your life.

Fundraising is a vital function of a club. Without money, the clubs of San Mateo could not do the special events they so love such as going out to dinner, having guest speakers, seeing films or plays, or just a night on the town. Not only is it fun, but it also provides an event for social interaction. Raising funds reflects the interest, participation, and support of its members. But just what is fundraising composed of?

Fundraising may take any form whether it may be baking, washing cars, or doing one hundred cartwheels. This year's fundraising has been very successful in bringing in money for club functions. By selling donuts and roses, the French Club was able to go out to dinner at l'Escargot. The Asian Club brought a gross of three hundred dollars by selling gummi bears. Junior Statesmen of America was able to use their funds to go to Fall State. Though these examples are just some of the uses clubs use their funds for, we mustn't forget all the hard work that goes into selling things like getting out of class early, ordering donuts and flowers, cutting out each gram individually, prepackaging gummi bears, and having to look for sponsors for the Bowl-A-Thon. So remember when you see clubs during brunch or lunch selling their products support them, because it is for a good cause.

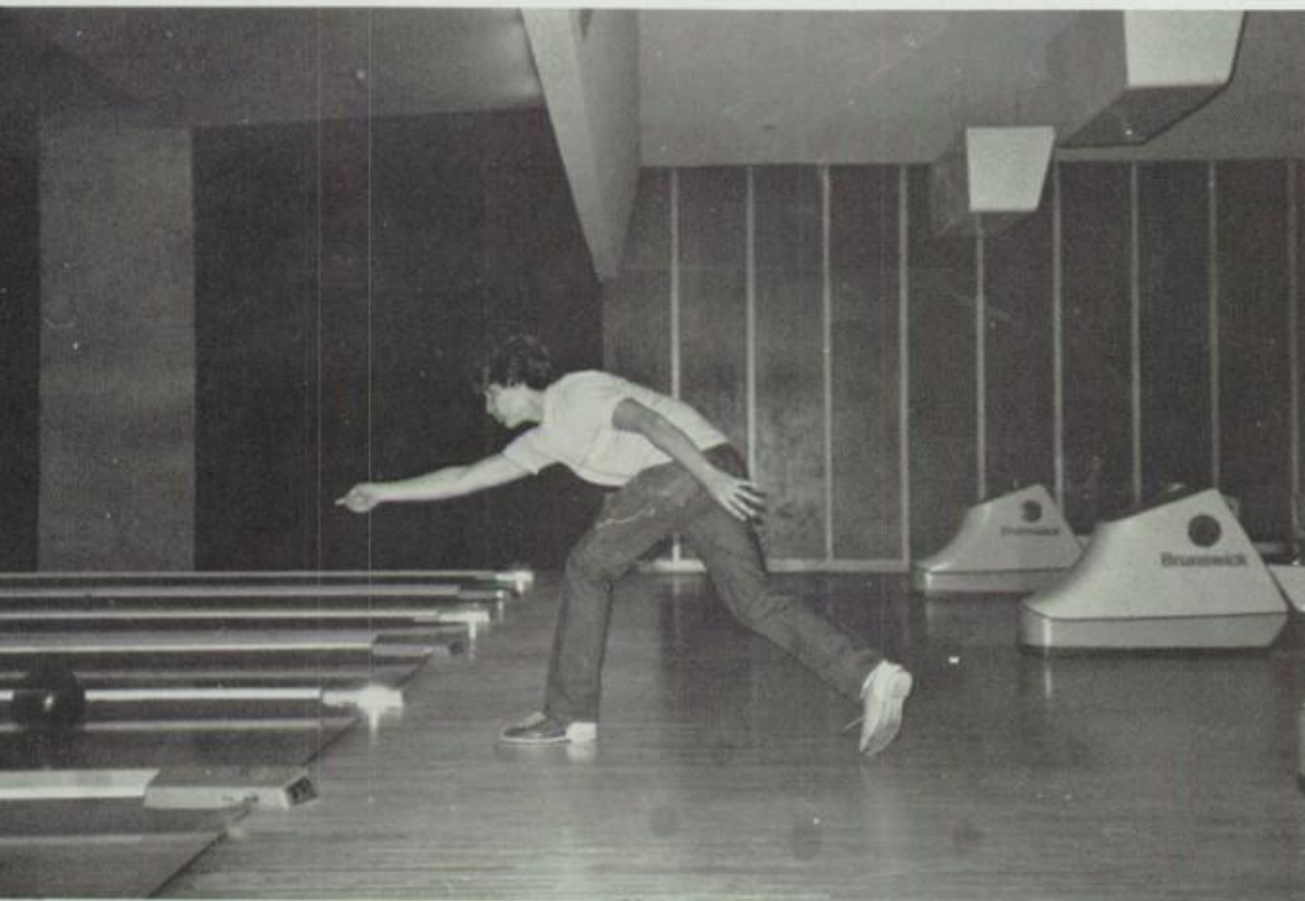

Club members earn "dough" by selling donuts.

Kristi Hock promotes love and the holiday spirit by helping collect mistle toe for the Ecology Club's annual sale.

Barbara Miltner, Amy Sasinowski, Greta Hanson, and Tiffany Haas design the poster for the French Club's Valentine flower sale.

Jonathan Schreiber displays the art of bowling.

THE VOTES ARE IN

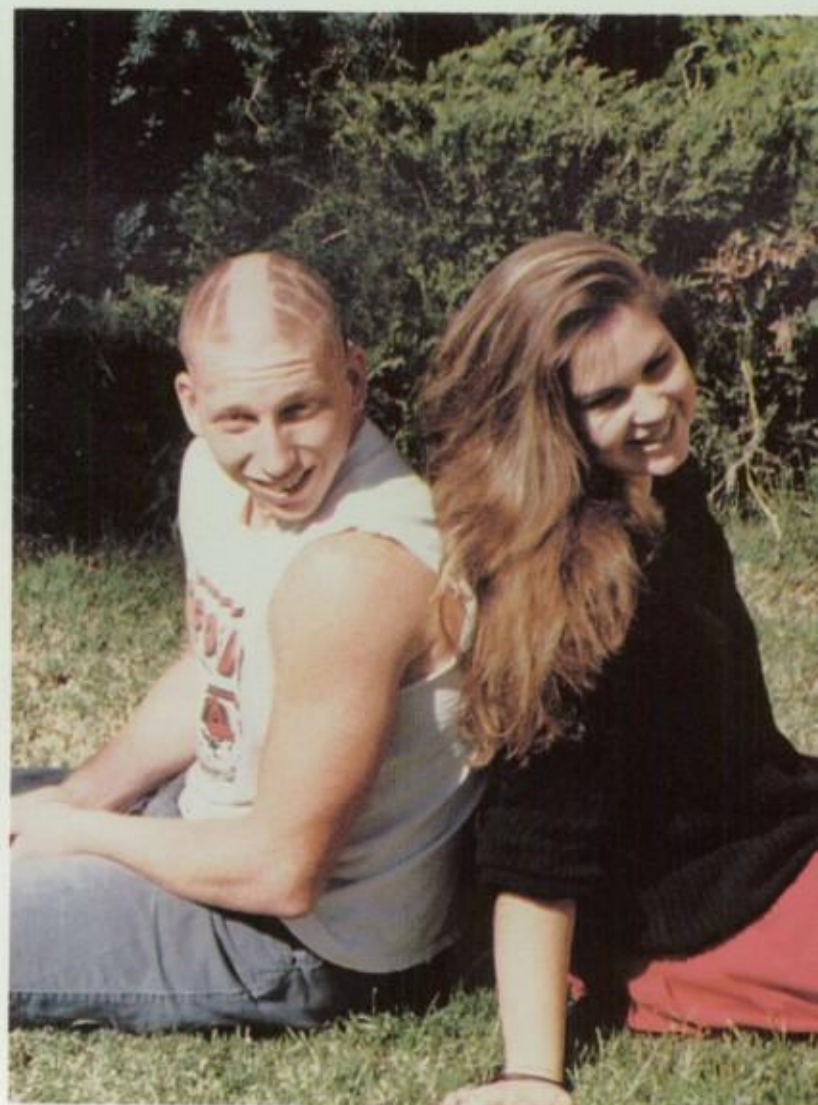

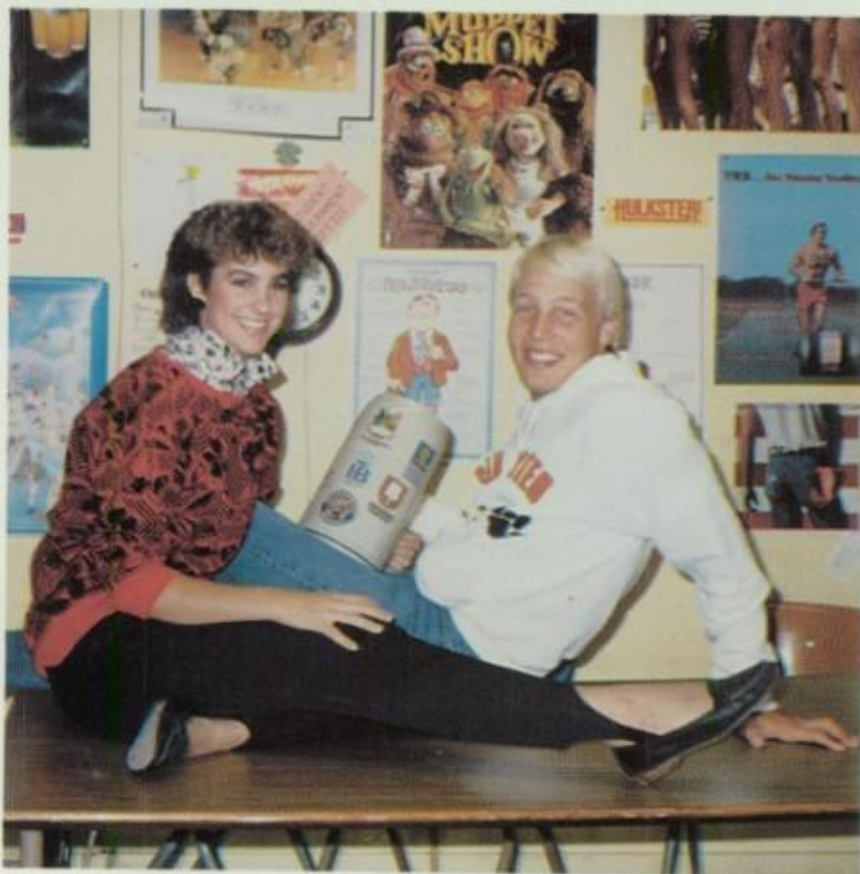

Easy going John Burman and Elana Ambler are this year's winners for "FRIENDLIEST." (Top)

Sitting pretty are the winners for "BEST NAME," Toy Nodzak and Long Nyugen. (Above)

Paige Lesniak and Darren Cook star in this year's "MOST TALENTED." (Top)

Donna Romano and Ernie Garay were voted "BEST EYES." (Above)

Next time there's a party look for Kristin Hinkle and Mike Klein, winners for "LIFE OF THE PARTY."

For "BEST HAIR" are Max Bozeman and Merrie Hastie.

SENIOR POLLS... (continued)

The winners for "BEST PERSONALITY" are Joanna Pisani and Matt Skinner. Can you guess what they're in? (Top)

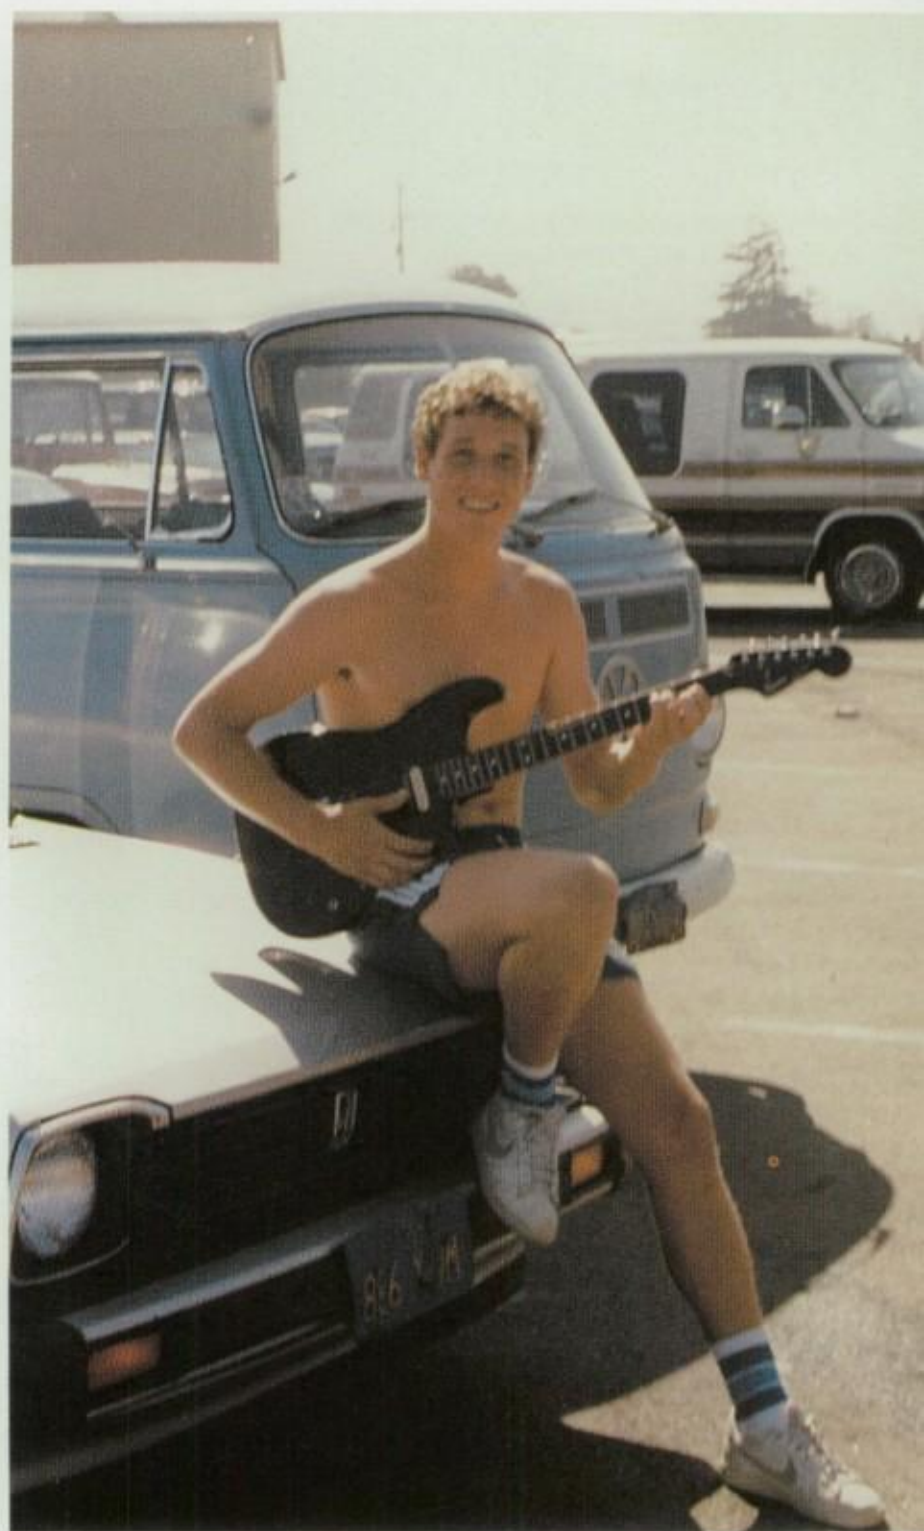

Rob Kerseg and Ellen Levin are the winners for "BEST LAUGH." (Above)

"BEST ALL-AROUND" winners are Gene Collins and Lynne Greco. (Top right)

Angela Mende and Nicole Sipos were caught snacking on animal crackers during brunch. "I like animal crackers, but I love animals," states Nicole.

The front lawn is one of the most popular spots for students to congregate. Here, Derek Benson "vegetates" during one of his spare moments.

Fooling around with a friend's guitar, David Ison spends his lunch in the junior parking lot. The nice thing about California is that one can get a tan even in the Fall.

Some inventive students, including Kristin Hinkle and Rachel Cotchett, paraded this sign across the front lawn at one of our spirit rallies. Also pictured is Deron White.

Just clowning around on the lawn are buddies Michele Lerner, Tracy Benjamin Kim Boyer, Stephanie Saito, Catherine Waslif, Sabina Stock, Ann Lee, Michelle Gard, and Colette Sandstedt.

HAVE YOU <sup>The Bug?</sup> CAUGHT

Senioritis Strikes Again

You are sitting at your desk staring at a blank sheet of paper. The essay is due Monday. Your pile of homework seems to grow bigger and bigger. For weeks you find that you can't concentrate as your mind wanders and your attention span grows shorter. As you read the words fade in and out of your consciousness. Who cares about school work? As you walk down the halls an idea takes root in your mind and clings to it firmly, "Beach, party, kick-back" it whispers. Although you once might have been interested in the lecture on the interaction of microorganisms within human cells, today the words just drift by you as you watch the walls melt. All your friends seem to have the same problem. But what is the problem? In a word, the answer is Senioritis.

Senioritis strikes everyone sooner or later during their high school years. For most Seniors, it hits during mid March. More severe cases have been known to attack in September. When the epidemic is in full swing, noses start to rise as Seniors look down scornfully at those "dregs" of society, the underclassmen. IQ's, on the other hand, take a drastic fall as the beaches of Half Moon Bay call out to the prospective delinquents. Teachers dread this disease, but its victims are usually unable to realise that they have been infected. So beware! There is no known cure for this disease once you catch it!

Some days seemed to go on forever, first to math, then to English, or whatever. Eating at Togo's or Jack In The Box, for others the Deli was the place to be. Hearing the bell and rushing to class, brunch and lunchtime sure could go by fast.

Counting the holes in the ceiling, listening to the teacher all the while. Classroom discussions, lectures and more, I don't think I can take it anymore. Staying up late to cram for AP, turning in "Othello," hoping for a "B."

Lots to do and places to go, having a day off, seeing a show.

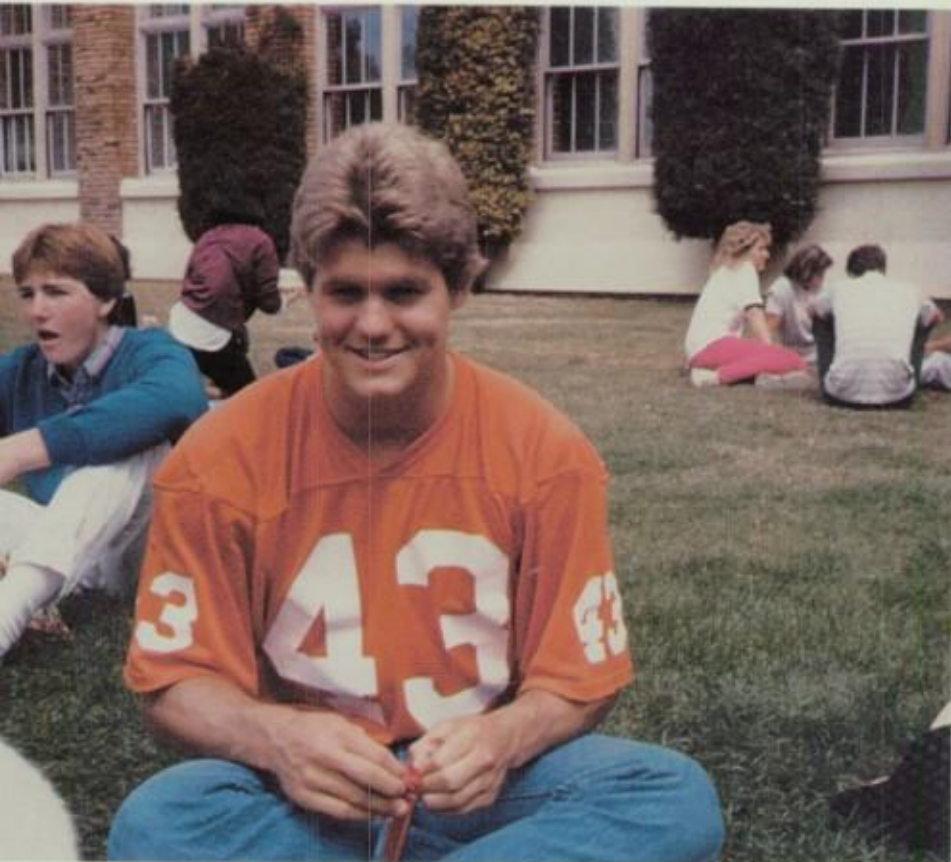

Special moments, embarrassing times, trivial pursuits, and staying in line.

A split in the seams, a slip down a stair, closing the door with a bit more care. Goody gum stuck on somebody's pants, a girl in the boys bathroom just by chance. A smile to a friend across a crowded hall, cracking a joke, having a ball. Finals and graduation, it all came to an end. One final look, what a smile, what a friend.

With The Clock Ticking And Pencils Scratching Seniors Prepare For College

Ever since you were a child, parents have always told you what to do and what is right. Your school has required the classes you must take in order to graduate. Suddenly in your senior year the decision of what to do is dropped into your lap. Where do you turn for help? The Career Center is your new best friend and is here to help. Mrs. Snider is one woman everyone should get to know. She is an inexhaustible wealth of college and career information. The decision of "What am I supposed to do with my life?" is probably one of the hardest decisions you'll have to make. As freshmen, college seemed so far off. But time slips by so fast that suddenly you turn around and college is staring you right in the eye. There are college fairs to attend, representatives to meet, applications to fill, deadlines to meet, and essays to write all within a couple of months. As if this isn't enough, there are mindboggling tests to take such as the S.A.T. and Achievement tests. During these brief months, all one feels is pressure as you worry about scores, GPAs, and countless other things.

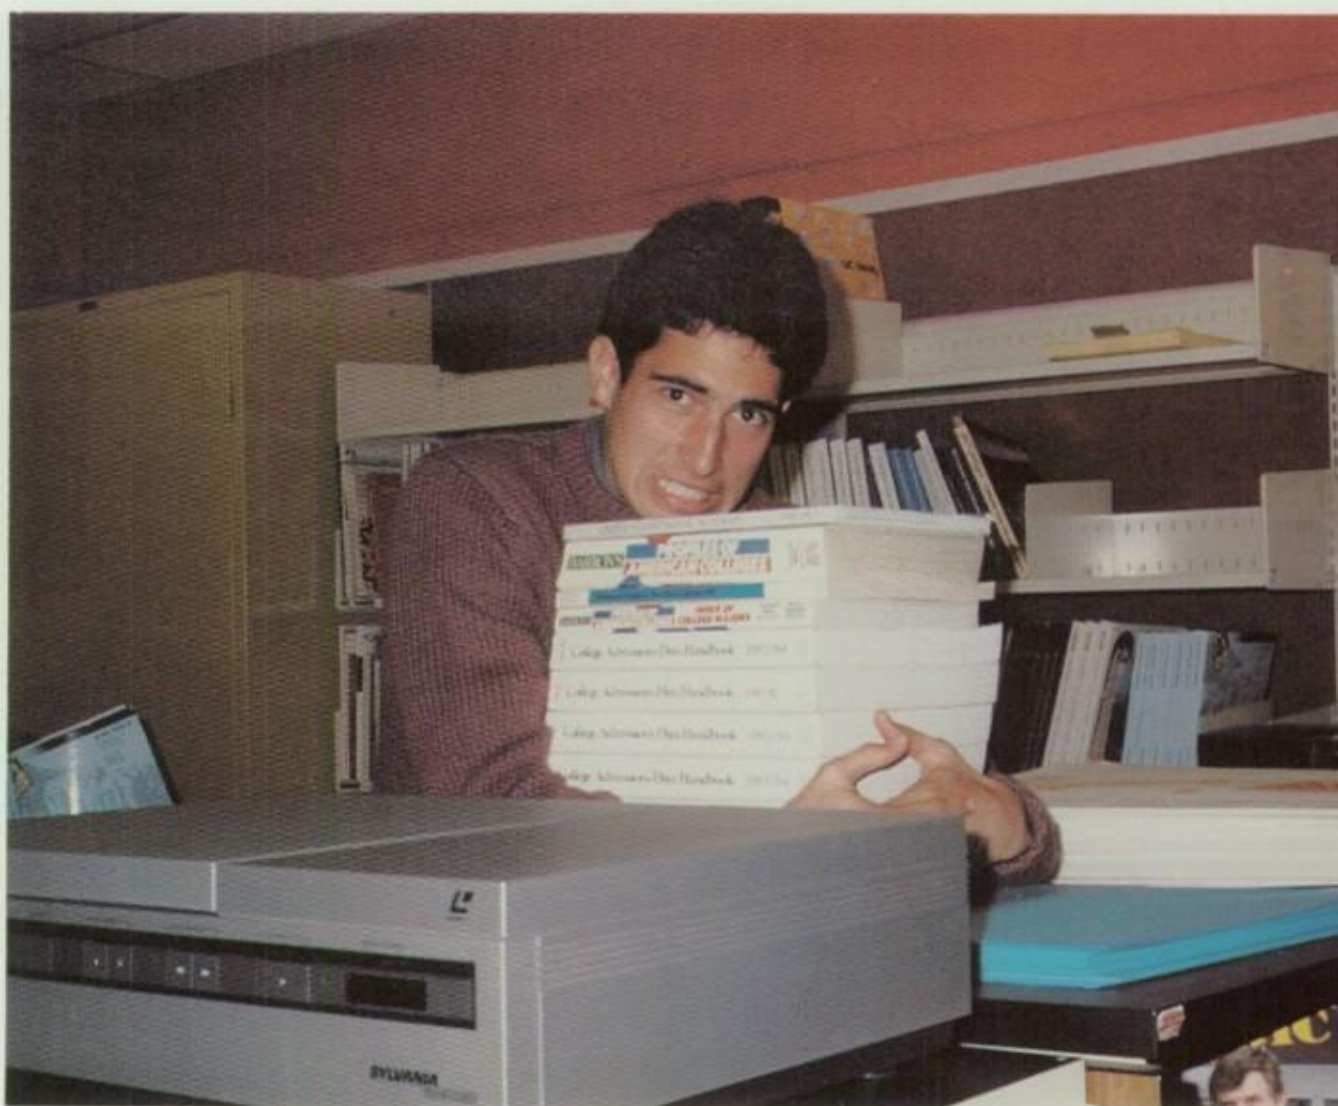

Finally you mail the applications in. At last you can relax you think. But no.... Now you must face the agony of waiting for an answer. Were you accepted or not? And as the months drag on, the pain of waiting becomes more and more acute. Then, the envelope arrives and it's all over....

Mrs. Snider helps George Black, Ari Goldfield, and Chris Coker, giving them college advice. (Bottom)

The Class With Class

Paul Kubin casts a quick glance to the rear, but as always, he trudges onward.

Class President, Norm Book, shows his spirit by strategically stuffing marshmallows into his mouth during spirit week. His voluminous mouth allowed him to tear victory away from Brooks Mendel and others.

Elizabeth Kaufman contemplates the meaning of life, the Universe, and everything.

Andy Stulbarg enjoys a front lawn assembly.

catch a glimpse...

Adrian Tiffany is getting a better look at the action during the SM-Aragon game. (upper)

Rishelle Nightingale, Judy Chen, Katherine Goetzl, Christina Ip, Stacey Bush, and Lan Tang look up as we interrupt their lunchtime chat.

The 41-0 score at the SM-Sequoia game obviously pleases Kristin Rutledge and Andrea Novinsky. (right)

Look around and observe, and you will find the species called sophomore wandering in the halls or grazing on the front lawn. You might ask, "Are these the same creatures who were once overdosed on MnM's, or are they sloely maturing into next years juniors?"

But before they become full-fledged sophomores, they must pass the initiation: the dreaded drivers training. After coming out of the simulator the Sophomore thinks, "How hard can this be?" Then, the moment of truth arrives when he is asked to get into the car. His confidence begins to diminish as he notices the nailmarks clawed into the dashboard (on the teacher's side of the car) while he is putting on his seatbelt. His heart now starts to beat like a drum as he touches the ignition. Fortunately, this horror story does have a happy ending. The Sophomore not only passes his examination, but he "jammed"

To the Sophomore, we give an "a" for effort. No more will he stand in the bus lines, and he can start to walk with his head held high.

So catch a glimpse of these survivors... the few, the proud,

FRESHMEN

THERE'S HOPE YET?

THE BEGINNING

"Terror! It's the first day of school and here I am trying to find a friendly face. Everything is so different and there are so many people-so many strangers. I hope I can get through today without anyone bugging me. Well, finally the bell has rung and I have to go to class. This place is so HUGE! First period I have English in room two but where is it? This doesn't look like an English class, but it says room two on the door. Oh no. No one told me there's a room H-2 and a room 2. My first day of school and I'm late to class! This is so confusing. Am I ever going to learn my way around here?"

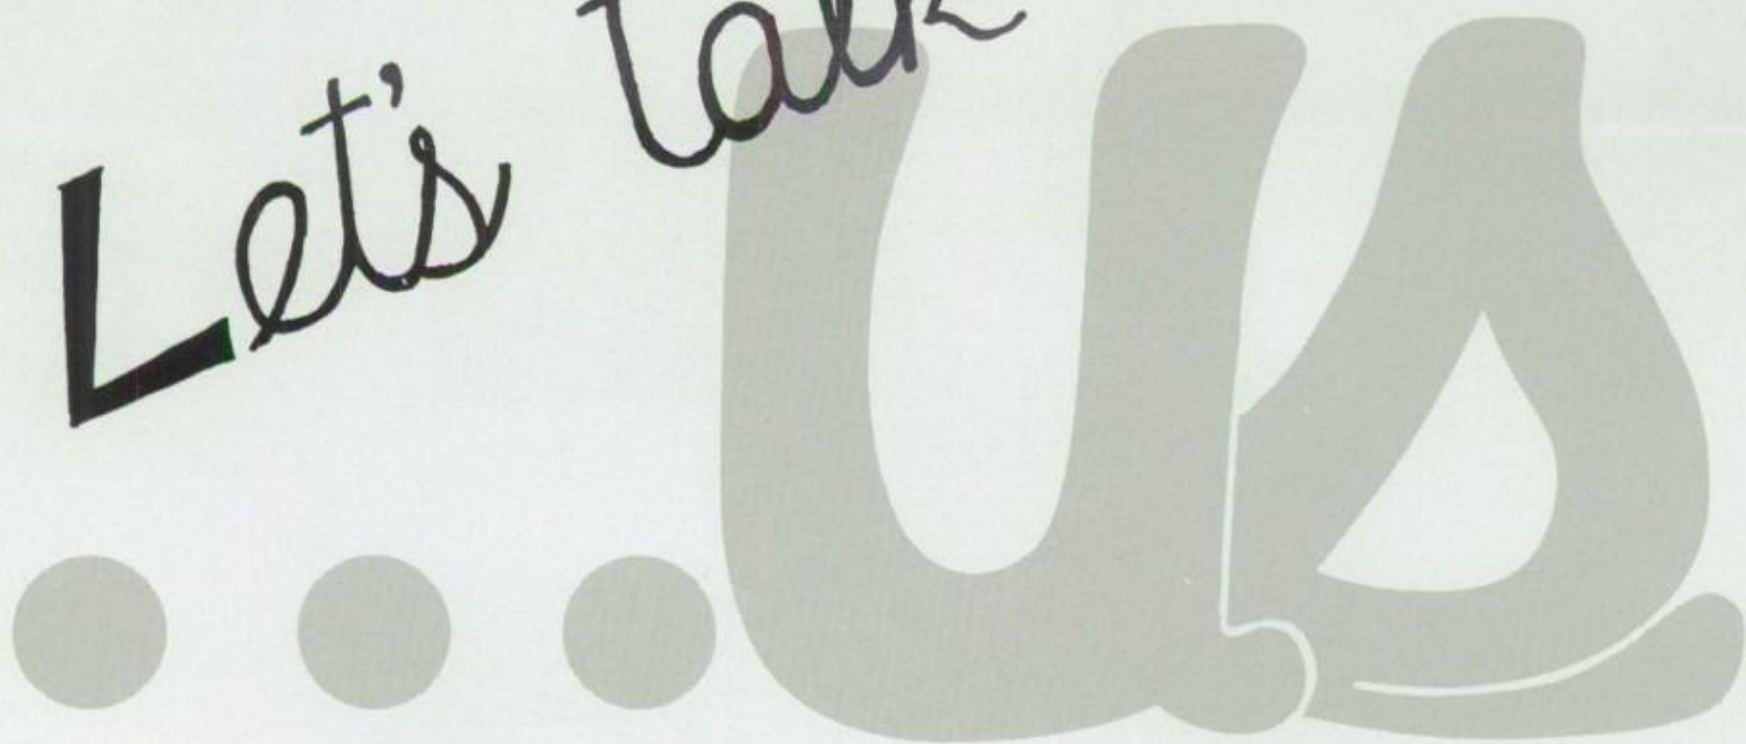

This fear is typical among most freshmen, but it is soon gone. Soon lots of new friendships are founded and it becomes easier and easier to adjust. All the movies about high school student life that made you so anxious about San Mateo were really exaggerated. You were worried for no reason at all.

Well, welcome to high school. Take a deep breath and prepare yourself for what can be the best four years of your life. Take advantage of every opportunity and be sure to enjoy yourself. School goes by too fast and then suddenly, you'll find yourself spending your last days in San Mateo High with barely enough time to say goodbye to everyone and leave for college. One year has already passed and things can only get better!

Let's talk about

FACULTY : it's not just a job, : it's an adventure .

As I walk through the front door of the school, weighted down by an overflowing briefcase, I am assaulted by a dozen students. The questions are always the same.

"What are we doing today?"

"When are we going to get our tests back?"

Right away I can tell this will not be a model day. I stagger into the main office, sign in, and grab my mail. Before I can escape with my sheaf of papers, someone says, "Don't forget to put on a good show for the guy from the Board of Education."

Depression sets in. "Thanks for reminding me. I forgot he was coming." you respond. Privately you think, "Curses, I was going to show my class that movie on Bio-Medical Engineering. That would have let me finish off those essays. I know, I'll give them a quick reading check. That should effectively use up half of the period. And for the remainder, I can give part of tomorrow's lecture. The only problem is that I'll have to correct the reading checks on top of the essays! Well no partial credit this time!" In my room, I concoct twenty devious questions just before the bell rings, then I send my resident teacher's pest to make photocopies. Enter the gum chewing public. I hate gum. How many times have I told them not to chew gum?

"Okay, settle down, class has begun." I roar through the din. "Oh excuse me Chris, am I interrupting your conversation? Please continue." I had to try not to smirk. I love sarcasm. "Now that we're all quiet, take out a piece of paper and clear your desks...."

After what seems an eternity, my daily ordeal is over and it's time for lunch. Time for a peaceful game of Bridge with my cohorts.

"What can I do to raise my grade?" queries the kid who never does his homework. There goes lunch!

How to start class: Lesson No. 352

Pretend you are a teacher. Sit back, suck in your gut, and adjust your bifocals. Now look around you. What do you see? Thirty twisting and turning teenagers sit before you. Wait, only thirty? Somebody is missing. He's not here! That's right, the one who constantly interrupts your lectures with questions you've just answered and always comes sauntering in late is absent. Oh no. it can't be! He did it again. He is late. Why are you surprised? You really should be used to it by now you know. Oh well, at least you will have the satisfaction of giving him detention. No back to the class. Since you have made no motion of starting class yet, the thirty plus one twist bodies are still at it. How do you get their attention? Since these are seniors, there's only one thing to do. Drastic action is necessary.

"Get out six pieces of binder paper. We are going to have a major test on Conrad." you announce with what you hope is a sadistic tone in your voice.

That did it! There is now perfectly dead silence. Then an anguished wail rises from the center of the room.

"You can't do that! You didn't tell us there was a test!"

going to be a test! That's not fair! I didn't even read it yet!

Your moment of triumph is over now and you must spend the next couple of minutes assuring the class that you were joking, there really isn't a test today. Well, at least you got their attention.

Mr. Cassady once solved the problem of catching his students' attention this way. After returning a twenty eight point test, he uncovered a grading scale from his chalkboard. It read like this:

28 A
27 $\frac{3}{4}$  a-
27 $\frac{1}{2}$  B+
27 B
26 $\frac{3}{4}$  B-
26 $\frac{1}{2}$  C+
26 C
25 $\frac{3}{4}$  C-
25 $\frac{1}{2}$  D+
25 D

After a moment of stunned silence, the class shrieked in unison, "You've got to be kidding!" He was.

"LOTS OF CHANGES"

"Lots of changes" have marked the thirty years which Mr. Hanson has spent at San Mateo High School. Some of the biggest changes have been in his career. He was originally hired at San Mateo as a coach, but he became active in the woodworking and math departments soon after (he still coaches wrestling). When asked what his most memorable experience at SMHS was, Mr. Hanson dryly stated that "There is no most memorable experience when you've been teaching thirty years."

Before Mr. Hanson came to San Mateo High, he taught at Colma Middle School. He graduated from Palo Alto High.

For his retirement, Mr. Hanson wants to do "something different."

BECOMES TEACHER

After fourteen years at San Mateo High School, Mrs. Jobe is retiring. A teacher of French, Spanish, and English, as well as sponsoring the French Club, Mrs. Jobe is well known to the students at S.M.H.S. But San Mateo is not the only school she has taught at. Before teaching here, Mrs. Jobe spent some time at Mills and one semester at Burlingame High School. San Mateo is Mrs. Jobe's favorite though because she graduated from San Mateo H.S. "San Mateo High School represents the whole community" she states "The kids are extremely friendly".

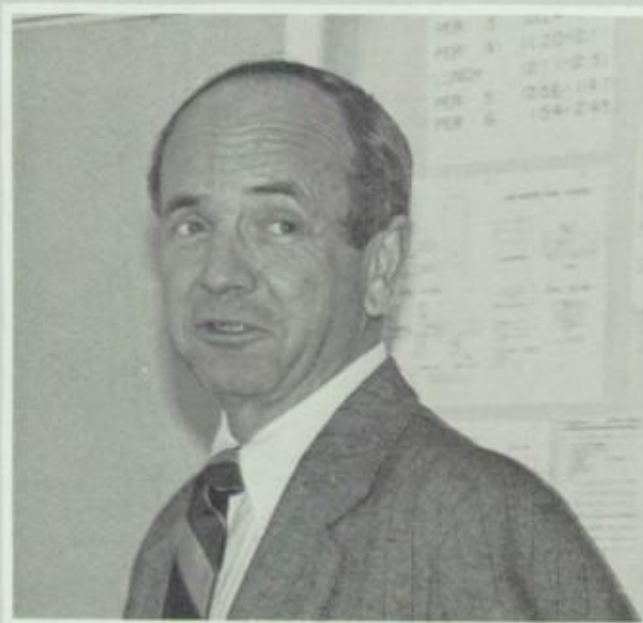

Her students feel the same way about her, "Mrs. Jobe makes her class interesting and relates to the students well" ex-student Sheri Brooks stated.

Mrs. Jobe's plans for retirement include sailing and spending time in the mountains.

Mr. Quinlan

San Mateo Hi

If you enjoy reading the San Mateo Hi, or browsing through old yearbooks, give thanks to Mr. Bob Quinlan, who is retiring this year after helping hundreds of Aspiring journalists.

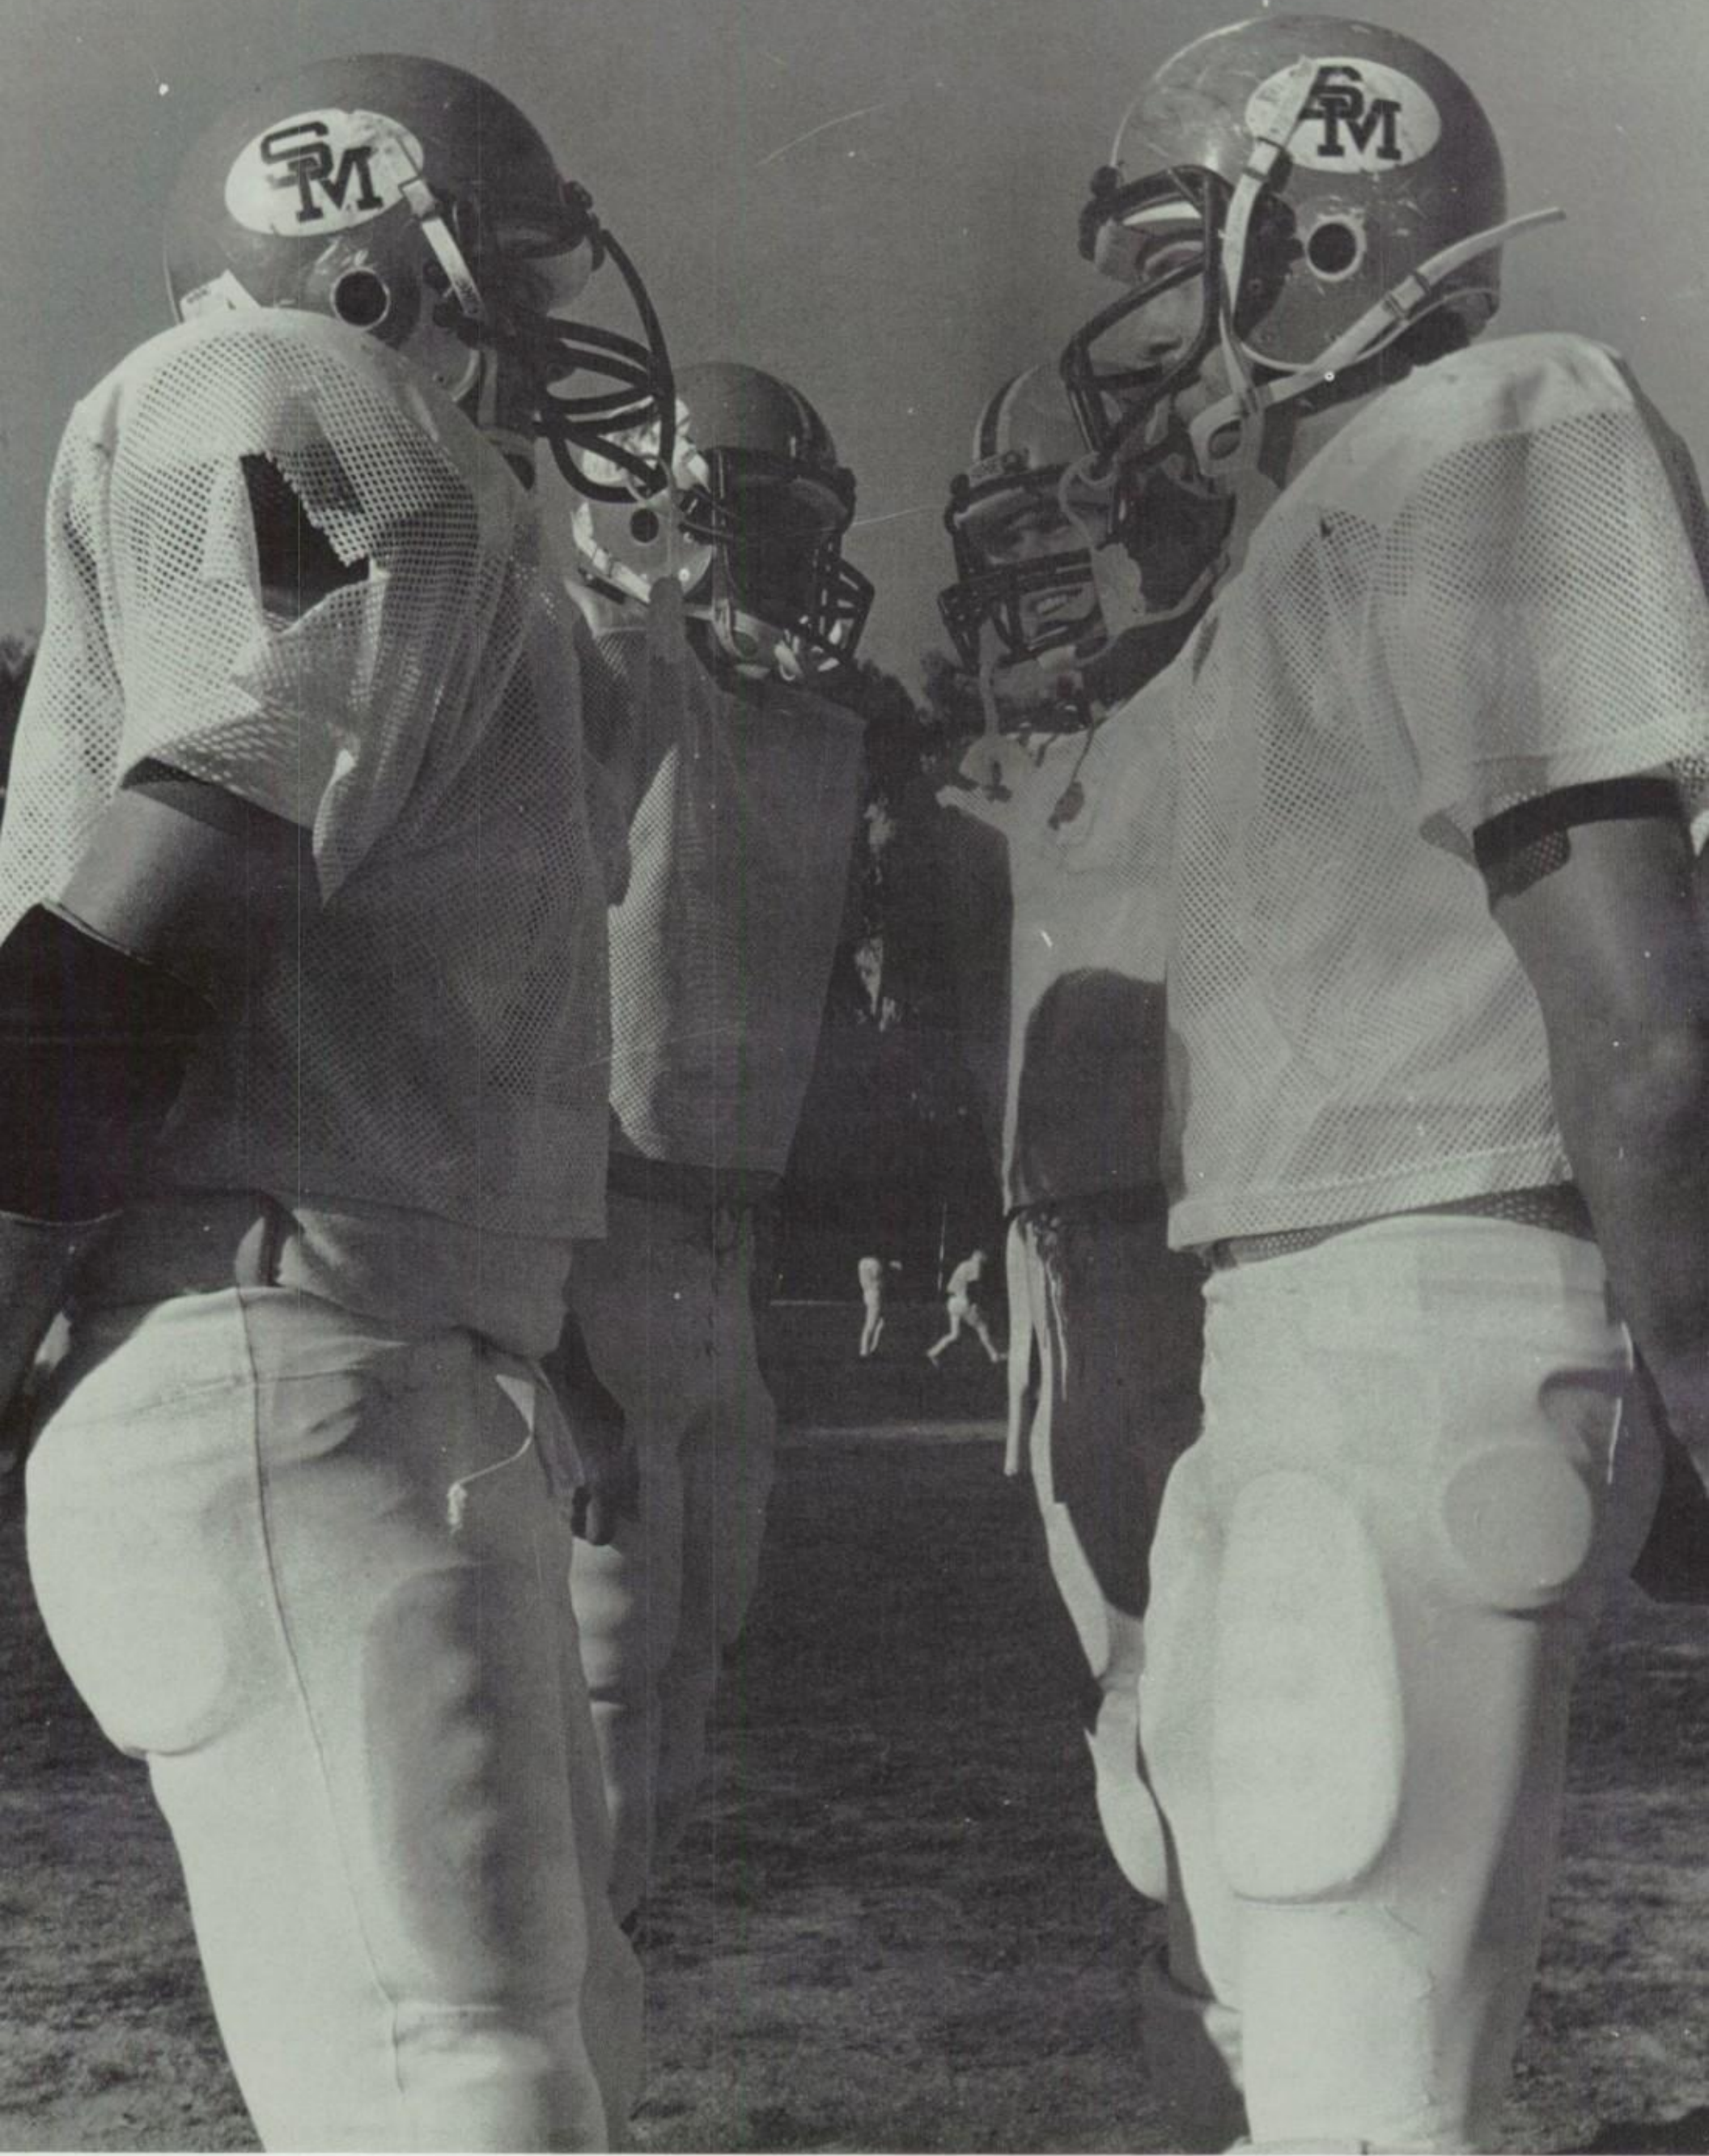

Mr. Quinlan, an English teacher, has been at San Mateo since 1959, the year he took over as Elm advisor. Since then, he has also taken charge of advising over the Hi, a job he jokingly admits is his because no one else wants to do it. Not many other teachers would as readily go through the bi-weekly agony of yet another deadline, the broken typesetting machines, or the late nights in the "shop," but Mr. Quinlan says that "Doing the publications has been lots of fun." His pride shows itself in the quality of San Mateo publications, which consistently win top honors.

WINNING IMAGE

The tension mounts. Lining up, the orange and black-clad gladiators hold back until the sign is given to surge forward. The moment comes. The pushing and the cracks of shoulder against shoulder begin, causing pain and perspiration to become second nature to those young men who strive to make their school proud. Week after week, the 1985-86 P.A.L. and C.C.S. Champion San Mateo Bearcat football team treated their fans to a show of flashy plays executed by a winning combination of talent and intensity.

Critics are shown many astonishing performances and record-breaking statistics throughout the season to prove that San Mateo would be a contender for the Division Crown. The experienced leadership and poise of third year quarterback Randy Rubens, named to the All-Peninsula first-team, lead the Bearcats past all challengers to an undefeated season. Randy's passing skills and clear mind in the pocket enabled him to be ranked the #1 quarterback in the Peninsula. The agility of senior receiver Dave Farber also highlighted and headlined the spectacular S.M. season. While Farber and the tight ends lead the passing attack, the most successful running duo in the Peninsula, the dynamic running backs Peter Tuipulotu and Bob Whitehill proved to be threats on the grid and in the air. Peter rushed for record setting totals and ranked second only to Aragon's Hefu, while Whitehill topped the P.A.L. scoring charts with his key catches out of the backfield and explosive open field running. S.M.'s Multi-faceted offense racked up an amazing 437 points, an average 36.4 points a game.

While S.M.'s offense ran up record setting figures, the defense kept other teams from scoring at all. The words Relentless, steadfast, and viscious would not do justice to the awesome defensive squad of 85-86. Allowing fewer points than ever to be scored against a team in the P.A.L. (27), the Bearcat defense held tight for 9 straight shutouts. Senior Martin Billings, a towering 6'4" lineman lead the Bearcats with hard-hitting force against their opponents. Robert Lealo was also a key player in holding the line especially against his brothers' school Aragon.

So many facets of San Mateos team excelled throughout the season, but for the average student at San Mateo the excitement of watching the Bearcats embarrass other schools was what mattered. The anticipation of another invigorating blowout reverberated through the halls of San Mateo every Friday and the team didn't disappoint us. The 1986 Champion Bearcats will long be remembered for their dedication and true Winning Image.

Brad Catania demonstrates the Bearcats amazing drive for success. They stand on their heads to win.

What More Can You Say?

The Bearcat's nine shutouts were forgotten. Their average of 42 points per game was also forgotten along with their number one rating in defense and offense. The day was Thanksgiving and San Mateo's awe-inspiring season of no losses had come down to one last game against the Aragon Dons for the CCS (Central Coast Section) championship.

San Mateo's unrelenting offense scored three unanswered touchdowns in the first half using Peter Tuipulotu, David Farber, and Bob Whitehill. The score read S.M. 19, Aragon 0. The game was beginning to look like a typical Bearcat romp when midway through the third quarter, Aragon's offense finally got through San Mateo's intense defensive line to score a touchdown. The score now read S.M. 19, Aragon 7. Then, in the fourth quarter, Aragon became very threatening with a first down and goal to go on the Bearcat six inch line. Enter Bob Whitehill, Sean Carter, Chris Hacker, and Peter Tuipulotu with the rest of the #1 defense. Four times the Don s tried to move the ball six inches, four times they failed. Exit one very unhappy Aragon offense. S.M.'s defense thenwent on to make two key interceptions, but relinquished another seven points, making the score 19-14, with less than two minutes to play in the game. Aragon attempted an onside kick but Mike "The Kid" Morgenstern recovered it, ending a phenominal game and season for the mighty Bearcat football team.

Just For The Fun Of It

Boys Soccer Players Get Down and Dirty In This Exhilarating and Sometimes Painful Sport.

The boys' varsity soccer team's overall record of 9-6-1 could be deceiving. While it seems they had just an average year, the team actually played exceptionally well under adverse conditions.

Partially due to the loss of four starting players due to injury, the team began the season with three losses. The team then adjusted, and with renewed enthusiasm went on to finish with only one loss in the regular season. The defense only allowed one goal in the team's last six games.

The real story may be in the performance of the frosh soph team, whose players booted their way to the PAL title, finishing the season undefeated. The offense scored an average of 2.1 goals a game, while the defense gave up only an average of .3 goals. The talent in the returning varsity bearcat booters coupled with the strength of the up and coming frosh soph team should make the team one to be contended with in the coming years.

Coach Adolfo Pina looks on at the team that didn't give up even after a 0-2 starting record.

Andy Stuart succeeds in keeping the ball away from two determined defensive players.

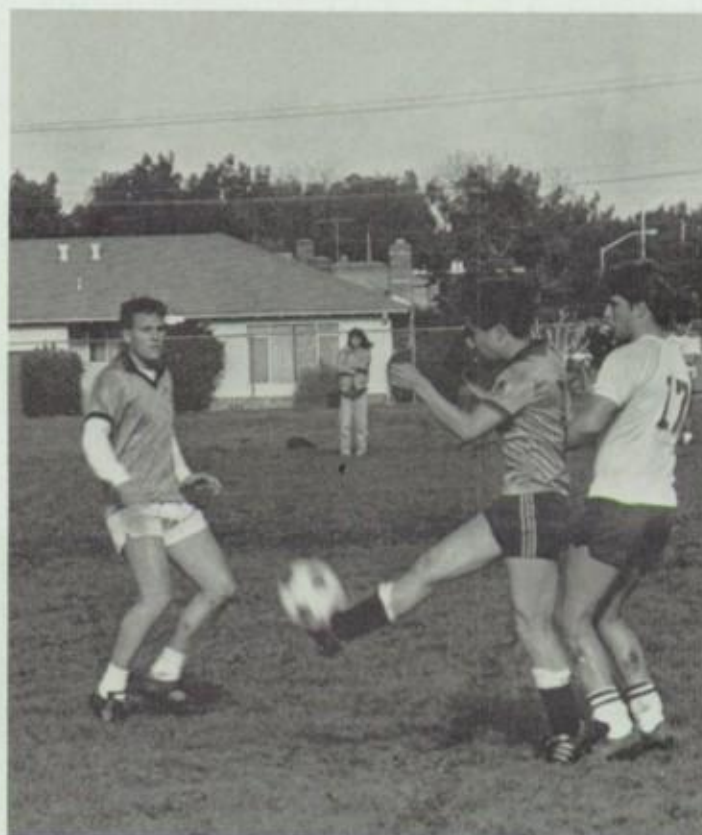

Kevin Flood looks almost more like a basketball player than a soccer player, but his efforts here helped San Mateo to MA 1/0.

Girls' Soccer: little bit lethal!

According to Coach Barber, "It was their best year ever!" Indeed the SM girls' soccer team had a year that they can be proud of. Many team members developed outstanding passing techniques that stunned their opponents. The varsity team had many skilled players who won honorable titles. Those awarded for all league were Jodi Ezrin, Sarah Kivel, and Suzanne Astier. Rusty Moore was nominated for second team all league. The Bearcats upset a tie at Menlo-Atherton 1-1. Menlo, who has record for being undefeated, surely was nervous at the chance that this might be their first loss. The Bearcats played valiantly and lost in overtime 3-2 to Sequoia at the playoffs. They finished the season with an overall record of 15 wins, 4 losses, and 3 ties. The frosh-soph played especially well, losing never more than by 1 point. With a 3 loss-16 win record, the frosh-soph team won an honorable mention. Among them were Amy Hessel and Kim Staehlin for all league and Marie Labrador and Robby Krow for second team all league.

Though the girls' soccer teams may seem sweet and innocent on the outside they sure become lethal when they play their sport.

With amazing agility, Sarah Kivel moves the ball down the field.

That is O.K., the people at Burlingame can't either.

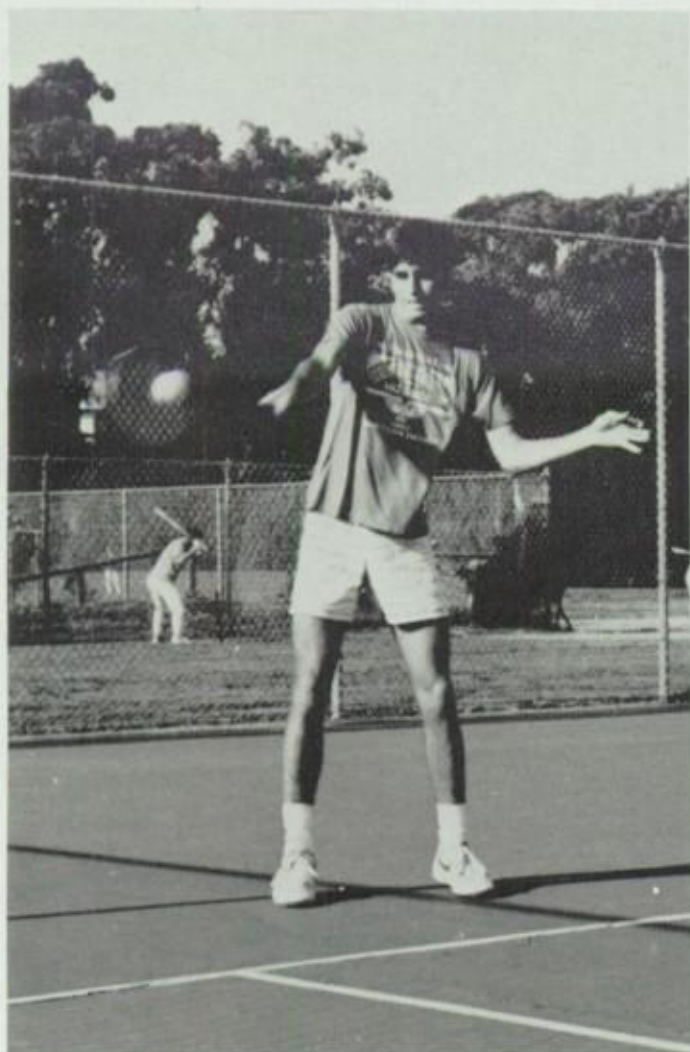

The varsity team has very, very good players. Freshman Jill Revels, senior Liane Dong, junior Sarah Kivel, and senior Emmy Kenner are the four best singles players. Seniors Judy Chang and Rebecca Watts are a very, very good team. They went to CCS. They were the first people from our school to ever go there. This is a very, very big honor. We are very, very proud of the whole team.

FROSH/SOPH
FOOTBALL TEAM
HIT 'EM HARD

This years Frosh/Soph football team was young, consisting of almost all freshmen starters. The lack of experience was made up for with determination. Sophomore Alex Stillman lead the team as quarterback for the first half of the season until Victor Amador took over at the helm. The highlight of the season came when the F/S Bearcats beat Burlingame to finish the season. Several team members earned all-league honors. First team all-leaguers were Ben Ricci, John Moore and Tony Labrado. Second team honors went to Craig Henderson and Rodney Alexander.

Ending the season with a 3-3-1 record, hopes are high for next year. The returning Freshmen starters stand an excellent chance of taking their team to the top.

H<sub>2</sub>O POLO

A Special Chemistry

"Waterpolo is not a sport, it's a way of life." This statement, made by an avid fan of this sport, perfectly describes waterpolo. Especially in the sport of waterpolo, dedication and determination, as well as strategy, strength, and cunning, are key factors in a winning season.

This year's varsity waterpolo team won more games than they had in the last three years combined. With 1st team all-league offense players John Doorlay and Paul Bunke, who scored 60 and 59 goals respectively, San Mateo was able to finally emerge as one of the top teams in the PAL. Of course, as in any sport, good defense is an integral part of waterpolo. With 1st team all-league defense players Norm Book and Doug Mathieux and 2nd all-league defense player Max Bozeman, few teams were able to beat San Mateo. The combined efforts of all the waterpolo players led to a 10-4 season and a 3rd place spot in the PAL. The frosh-soph waterpolo was able to earn a 3rd place spot, with key players like Aaron Kivel and Bruce Sarhati. Players from both the varsity and frosh-soph waterpolo made this an exciting year for fans of this sport. According to Paul Bunke, waterpolo is a game that becomes a "survival of the fittest." For this season San Mateo survived.

Cindy Kanaya closes her eyes in meditation before letting the ball sail over the net. (bottom right).

More than anything, volleyball typifies the need for team work and effort in a successful combination. This year's team was a perfect example of such commitment. Though San Mateo boasted All-league first teamers Rebecca Sprague, Kristi Hackman, and Chris Givins, second teamer Carmelita Ogo, and Kelly Osborn, honorable mention, their strongest point was their togetherness as unit. The varsity team sported ten juniors and one sophomore this year. They aced their way through the season without being bumped off, even in the absence of seniors. The San Mateo varsity leaped to a 9-0, league leading finish by simply out-playing their competition, frequently winning straight sets. The Frosh-Soph held its own with an 8-1 championship finish. Coach Denis Hashiguchi along with the players express optimism for the team's chances for state championship berth next year. endurance fun and sun

X COUNTRY

HA HA MR DOOLEY, CAN'T CATCH ME

Cross country is a sport which involves much stamina and endurance. It involves running long distances - up to 10 miles a day.

The greatest benefits to the team are certainly the seniors and Coach Dooley. In the '86 season, S.M. did quite well in the P.A.L. finals, with the girls varsity team making it to regionals.

Some of the many runs are the 7 mile family, sky farm (for boys), Coyote for speedwork, and the 4 mile run.

Contrary to popular belief, Cross Country is a very dangerous sport. If Mr. Dooley "just happens" to be driving by while you are in Hilltop purchasing a snack, you have to "hit the deck" fast. Or if you are walking a course when he drives by, you have to make a quick "Dooley Dive" into the bushes. If you happen to feel "sick for the day", you get to walk a few 13-20's while Mr. Dooley serenades you with a hiking song. So you see, Cross Country is not for those individuals with weak hearts (or legs).

Agony. That's what comes to mind for most of us when we think of running. But the track teams have overcome this drawback in their race for success. Coached by Mr. Dooley, Mr. Niemi, Mr. Jackson, and Mr. Carvey, the teams hope to run away with the P.A.L. championship.

Unfortunately, it is too early in their season to talk about anything but names of hopeful track stars. For the varsity team, Gus Teller, John Stillman, and Paul Bullock will be attacking the distance runs. Covering shot-put and discus are Bob Whitehill and Joe Melko. Relay team leaders are Willie Wynn and Jeff Fancher. Competeing in long jump and the triple jump is Ilan Zipkin.

Covering the mile runs for the frosh/soph team is Bill Archibald. Chris Smith and Mike Teller will be running the 100 meter dash. John Crandall, Mike Teselle, and Dan Hashiguchi will be running the 880. Crandall is also a hot prospect in the long jump. Dan Starobin is a shot put competitor.

Megan Carlson, Jocelyn Teselle, Kris Sonner, Cindy Sonner, and Darlene Cluster are top distance Runners for the girl's team. Leaders of their hyper-kinetic relay team are Birgit Rehder and Michele Janigan. Kristi Hackman, Rebecca Sprague, and Shelley Tilton are top competitors in the field events.

Willie Wynn and the boys varsity trach team get physical.

Running for her life is Kris Sonner.

ERic Mc. Daniel and friend jump toward new heights.

Gus Teller puts his best foot forward.

Paul Bullock knows it's just a hop, skip and a jump towards the finish line.

STAYING ALIVE IN THE 20th CENTURY

Life Can Be a Little Rough When You Are A S.M. Grappler.

Moans vibrate off the chamber walls as muscles and bodies twist into unrecognizable forms. Tears of sweat, pain, and sounds of flesh striking the floor resemble those of an Idi Amin torture session. In reality, it is just another grueling three hour practice of Coach Hansen's wrestlers.

The San Mateo wrestling squad began their PAL season at Aragon on January 22. Prior to this meet, the SM wrestlers lost a couple of very difficult meets against Galileo and Half Moon Bay. San Mateo faced Half Moon Bay on Dec. 12. Half Moon Bay's team was very large (almost twice as big as San Mateo's) and it worked to their advantage. San Mateo had to forfeit three matches as there was no wrestler in those classes.

At varsity 98, Freshman Todd Martin wrestled extremely well in a 4-1 loss. Senior Doug Mignola, 105, started off slow, but shutout his opponent for the remainder of the match and prevailed, 16-2. At 145, Junior Eric Gard also wrestled well, but lost. Junior Tim "the Kuch" Wedan, shutout his opponent 9-0. Senior John Toney, at 190, wound up the varsity meet by pinning his opponent. In spite of the great efforts made by the wrestlers on the Bearcat team, San Mateo lost 49-15.

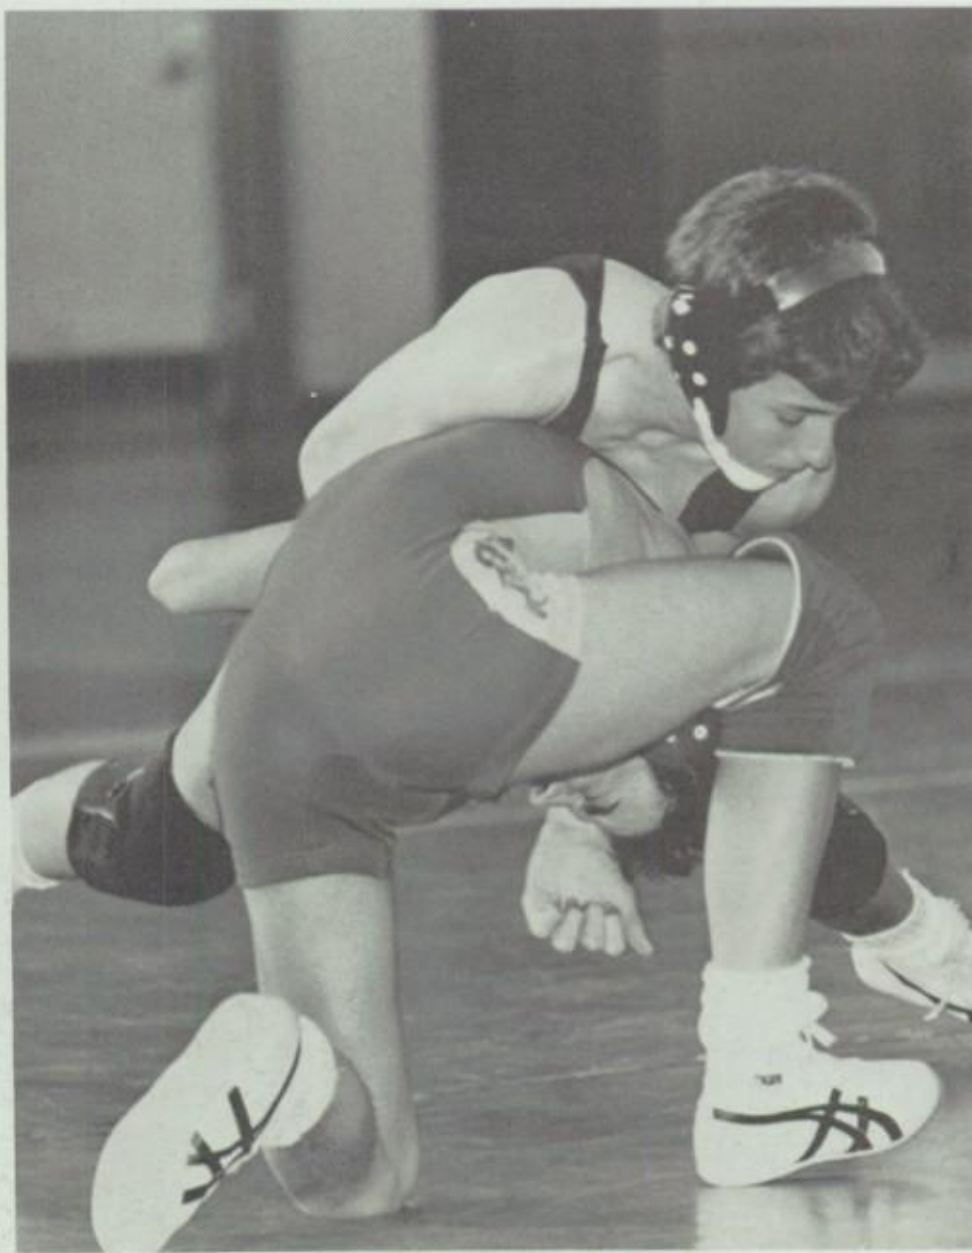

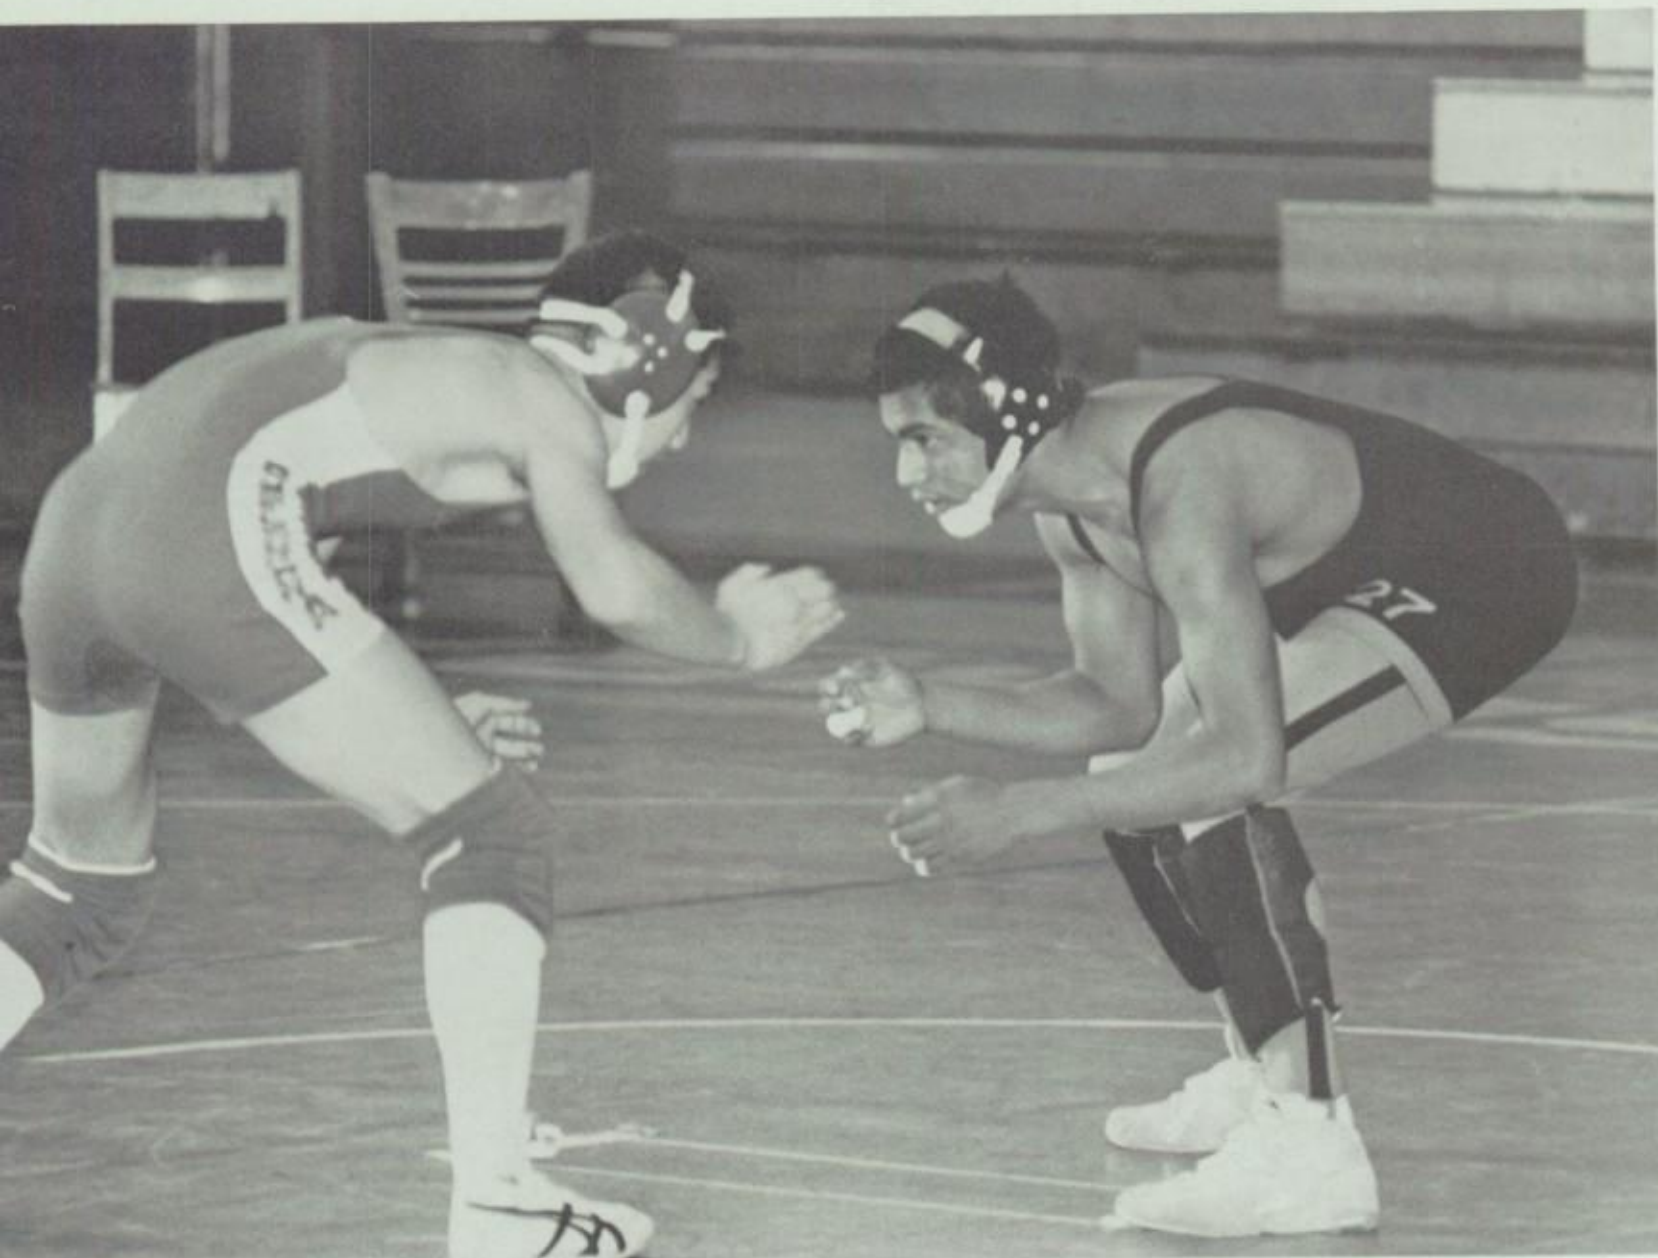

San Mateo fared better at Galileo on Dec. 17. Mignola, Gard, Wedan, and Toney all pinned their opponents for the Bearcats' only wins. Sophomore Joe Franzella, usually junior varsity, wrestled well and could have won, but five fouls (disqualifying him) and a bothersome bloody nose kept him from his first varsity win. Galileo prevailed 52-24.

The main problem for San Mateo this year is a shortage of wrestlers. Only six classes have two or more wrestlers and the remaining classes have one or no wrestlers. There is little competition for varsity sports with few wrestlers, and injuries could end up hurting the team. Win or lose we can be sure that the San Mateo wrestlers are giving it their best shot. In fact, San Mateo is being represented on the CCS meet by John Toney, Doug Mignola, Eric Gard, and alternate Todd Martin. Good luck Grapplers.

Girl's Basketball: A High Flying Venture

"The competition was better than we were used to playing, but we played well even if we didn't win. We learned from our mistakes and should benefit from them in the future. The players may be short but their aggression bruised the competition." This optimism expressed by frosh-soph coach Ronda Joms was reflected in the effort and hard work of this year's girls basketball teams. Despite their losing season, games were action packed and physical, and there were many times when a player would "make friends with the floor!" Competition in the girls league was fierce and the games were often plagued with over 50 fouls! The excellent free-throw shooting of Kristi Hakman served to pull the Bearcats out of close games. Kristi Hakman, Chris Given and Sherrie Henderson played a large role in putting points on the board for San Mateo. If hard work and effort are any measure of excellence, Varsity coach Mike Lawyer had reason to be proud of his Varsity Girls team.

UNEQUALED.

S.M.'S BASKETBALL TEAMS GO FURTHER THAN EVER BEFORE.

The mighty San Mateo Bearcats dominated yet another sport in 1986 and captured the title of C.C.S. North champions in a close game over the Jefferson Indians. With 6 seconds left in the game, Chris Romero sunk two foul shots to edge the Bearcats 66 - 64 over the Indians. In a seasonal summary, the boy's varsity team had 19 wins and 7 losses placing second in the PAL. The Cats ended up over top seeded Aragon when they claimed the C.C.S. title. The team's strength was illustrated by not one but my many players including the powerful Martin Billings, the dazzling Chris Romero (alias Dr. Jam), the ever swatting Blaine Mapa (AKA Inspector Maifai), sizzling shots by Lahi Vaka, Jeff Wedge, outstanding drives by Claude Dailey, Don Barbara, and George Fua. Several players boosted spirit and scores at games such as Dave "Spoooge" Ison and Al "Give me a T" Salvi. The team's overwhelming talent took them to the Northern California playoffs, a destination where no San Mateo Basketball team has ever gone before.

The 1986 Frosh/Soph basketball team also had an outstanding season. The team finished the season 10-0 in the league and 24-4 overall winning the PAL championship. Led by sophomores Eric Williams, Craig Henderson, Victor Amador, Rodney Alexander, and Greg Marinec, the team dominated the league with a combination of fast breaking, great defense, and a steady offense. Sophomores John Crandall, Jesse Dishart, and Damon Hashiguchi played key roles during the season. All-league selections went to Eric Williams and Craig Henderson (first team), Rodney Alexander (second team), and Victor Amador, (honorable mention).

RUN 4 your MONEY

There may not be any hotdogs nor popcorn, but the great American pastime has hit home. Adorned in their knickers and wielding intimidating mitts, these multi-faceted teams are in top form after a wobbly start. The varsity team has bounced back to victories over Menlo-Atherton, Mills, and Hillsdale, with seasoned players Jeff wedge, Chris Romero, Dave Ison, and Gene Collins. Their slow start can be attributed to the late arrival of those players from other sports. Ed Allemand, though retired as a San Mateo P.E. teacher, returned to coach the Varsity team. According to Mr Ed "We have a well balanced team, and our pitching looks great," and that's straight from the horse's mouth. The Bearcats are experienced in all areas of the game. All the infielders are veterans. The team is aiming high this year and is definitely a play-off team. They are not young and their experience will be a factor in the quest for a PAL title and a CCS playoff birth.

EFFORT ...

that's what it takes to be a gymnast

Just what does it require to be a gymnast? Most people cannot comprehend the work gymnasts go through in order to perfect their routines—the rips, tears, and callouses on the hands from practicing; the shin splints from vaulting and arm splints from the pommel horse which when taped up are very painful to remove. Gymnasts must live with the aches and pains that come from using muscles that have not been used for a while. They devote many hours to perfect their routines, and by remaining after school until 5 on weekdays and until 3 on minimum days to develop agility, grace, and balance. They rack their brains to come up with creative routines.

If this is what gymnasts go through, then why do they love the sport so much? "It's an individual sport unlike team sports such as baseball or football. Gymnastics allows an individual to express himself and work towards his own personal goals. Thus self-satisfaction is achieved," commented Alfie Charles. When asked why they go out for gymnastics every season, Scott Dunseath and Cory Castenada replied, "Gymnastics keeps you in shape. One can gain self-satisfaction by putting a routine together, perfecting it, and learning new moves.

It's a sport where one can excel outside of academics, performing in front of a live audience. It gives one a sense of responsibility. Gymnastics requires a lot of hard work and effort. Anyone could do it if he puts his mind to it. One just has to be willing to do it over and over and never give up." When asked the same question, Diane LaRue responded, "Being on the team gives me a sense of belonging.

The people in gymnastics have become like a family to me. It's a way to make new friends and see new and promising freshmen taking the places of the graduating gymnasts. It's fun!! You set your own goals, learn to encourage others, and support your teammates." Coach Sue Leong states, "Effort, that is what it takes to be good and this year sure looks like a promising season."

ADMINISTRATION

We're not athletes: we're badminton players. Badminton usually connotes images of picnics and pleasant Sunday afternoons. Actually, it is THE sport, requiring sheer power, sly finesse, physical superiority, and gallons of sweat. When a curious by-stander enters the girl's gym birdies are seen whizzing by at incredible velocities. #1 in the league, the SM birdwatchers are led by #1 singles Judy Chang, Grace Chen, and Liane Dong, supported by doubles Tracy Benjamin, Tina Cavanaugh, Sabina Stock, and Jin Choo. Honorable mention to singles Kelly Fong, and Tracy Benjamin. This year, a fan might notice a different unshaven pair of legs, male legs to be exact. For the first time, badminton has contriversally gone co-ed with 8 new, brave, male souls. Not to be outdone by their skirt-wearing teammates, this top features #1 singles Hoover Wong, who has got more flexible moves on the court than off, Mike Chang, Aaron Pollack, the most intimidating 6'6" netter in the entire league, and Jonathan Schreiber the "Mouth". With so much personality and skill, the team will definitely reach new heights, or at least Aaron will.

GOLF - TREE TIME

Undefeated after its first five games, the golf team coached by Buzz Williams is carrying on the winning SM tradition. San Mateo has been extremely strong in the course for the past two years and this year was supposed to be a rebuilding year but the success of young golfers might give S.M. another chance at top PAL honors. Coach Williams has teamed up the younger golfers with the older and more experienced top players so that they can learn from their peers while on the course during the mathes. High school golf rules allow each team to have six eligible players. The top five team players are Mike Morganstern, Joe Kirkpatrick, Tom Yohanan, Chris Oberhouse, and Darren Nelson. The sixth spot is determined by weekly play offs.

John Doorlay practices his belly flops instead of his starts.

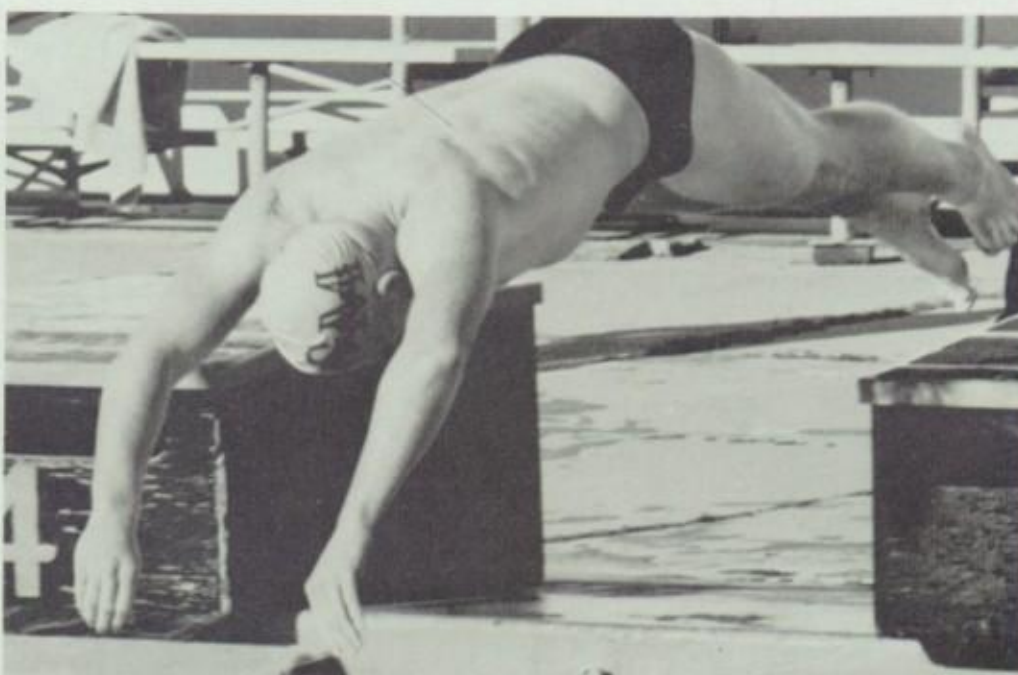

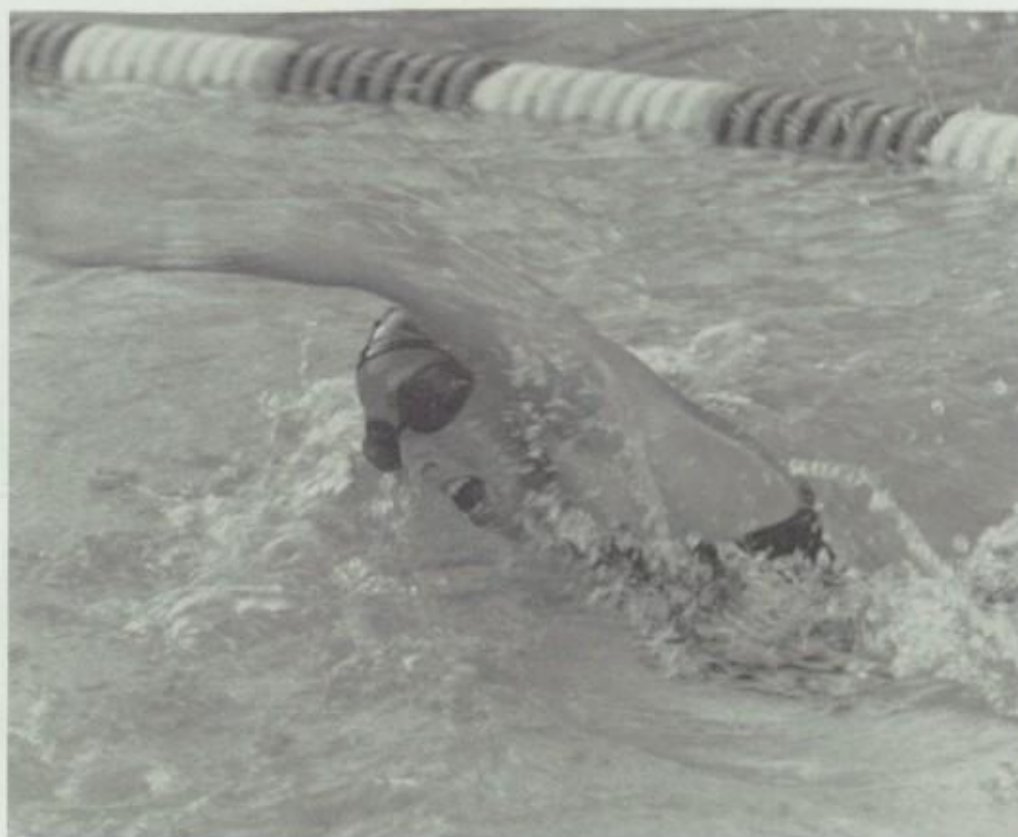

Practice from early morning to late evening was the rule for swimming this year. The girls team led by three c.c.s. swimmers, Stacy Weinthaler, Susan Harvey, and Leslie Doorlay, swam well this year. The training in the green lagoon of San Mateo gave the teams an extra edge over the compition. The boys team, if last year's record (three losses only to Aragon, Sequoia, and MA.) is any indication of this year's season then the guys will have a great season. According to Coach Randy Brown the team "should really well this year."

Alexa Paige Goldman

Kimilou Gilchrist, Stacey Weinthaler, Emmy Kenner, Marci Spiegleman, Alexa Goldman, Chris Jung, Debbie Podolsky, and Paige Lesniak pose for a picture during Alexa's 17th surprise birthday party.

Alexa and Aaron Nudleman enjoy themselves in the Rothchild Gardens in Israel.

Alexa Goldman and Emmy Kenner are standing on Masada in Israel during the summer of 1984.

When we think of Alexa Goldman, the word that comes to mind is extraordinary. She was a gifted young woman; cheerful, positive, and life-loving. When I think of Alexa I think of bright sparkling on water, the warmth of a fire, a smile for forever. Her kindness, humor, warmth, zest for life was an inspiration to us all," Barbara Kenner. Alexa also developed a great deal of courage while fighting ulcerative colitis. She entered the hospital in August for surgery before starting her senior year. While in the recovery room, she suffered cardiac arrest and never regained consciousness.

Alexa's life was a model for us all. Instead of dwelling on the problems colitis caused her, she continued to participate in many school activities. She was elected Delegate of her Freshman class, Sophomore class Vice President, and Vice President of Junior Statesmen of America her Junior year. Alexa was also elected in May of 1985 to serve as Student Body Treasurer for the following school year. Alexa participated in sports as well as tennis, volleyball, swimming, badminton, and skiing.

Alexa was not only involved in school activities but also took part in many community service organizations, including Peer Resource and the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors. The National foundation for Ileitis and Colitis was another group which benefitted from Alexa's warmth and caring. Many times she visited children and adults hospitalized with colitis. To them, she served as an example of how to overcome their illness. Alexa showed everyone that colitis was not a hindrance for physical or emotional health. This reflected Alexa's sense of bravery, sensitivity, and compassion for other human beings.

"Alexa wrote to me 'When all at peace, two friends at ease alone talk out their hearts...' Alexa embodied all the qualities which I love and respect. She was caring, compassionate, gentle, sweet, and sensitive. My friendship with Alexa will always hold a special place in my heart," Emmy Kenner. Alexa was indeed a combination of the most desirable qualities. A devoted, caring friend, she was always available to give advice or just a listening ear.

Alexa Goldman touched the lives of more people in her 17 years than many of us do in a lifetime. Those who knew her will continue to feel her presence. In her life, she contributed significantly to our community. Now, she continues to contribute; her memory stimulates us to emulate the qualities she so greatly personified.

Special thanks to student government, which gave us the inspiration and insight to dedicate this page.

I dedicate these last few but important words to my Natural Mother. There is not enough room to say everything I have to say but I will give it a try. First, I must say to my Natural mother, I love you very much. I don't know you and you don't know me but I have still been with you in many ways. So the words I long to say to you are in the songs "Hello" by Lionel Richie and "Against All Odds" by Phil Collins. May the road to find you rise up to greet me and we someday will meet. Mom: the sure thing comes all the time in life but the real thing lasts forever. So all mankind I say: It's time for man to realize we all share the same universe, Nature & Time! To see, hear, think, & do is not enough, to truly live one must feel. My love to the special friends in my life for personal and untold reasons. If you do not understand my silence you will not understand my words. I thought I saw a world of Peace, but it is all within a dream. I guess no one respects the flame quite as the fool who's badly burned. I'm laughing like a child, loving like a lover but who I really am I have yet to discover. For those who know the pain and whose names are never called, how can we go forward if we don't know which way we're facing. I'm not part of any country but the world itself is my home. I am the traveler of both time & space. I am the traveler of both time & space. I am the traveler of both time & space. This is the End, my friends, this is the END! &

Chris:
Hi! you've haven't talked for awhile, but whatever the reason, I hope we're still friends. We had some pretty good times together. Shaws, Party'ing, passing out, meetin' people, and whatever else.... Hopefully I'll see you before I move-which is soon.
You should start going to Shaws again,
there's some good one's coming up.
Well, if I don't see you before I move-
I want you to know that I'll always remember the good times we had.
Love
Erin
